BERLIN SUBURBS BOMBED, PARIS SAYS

NAZI TANK UNITS BREAK CHANNEL LINE

REICH DENIES ANY EVIDENCE OF RAID IS TO BE FOUND

Paris Announces Factories Were Attacked by Naval Planes in Outskirts of German Capital During Night.

PARIS, June 8 (AP).—The French Admiralty announced today that a squadron of naval bombers raided factories in the suburbs of Berlin last night.

It was the first time Allied flyers had dropped bombs on Berlin, although the German capital had been scouted and showered with propaganda leaflets since the start of the war.

German flyers raided Paris last Monday, killing 254 persons and wounding 652, according to French figures.

The next of the communique:

"A squadron of navy aviation bombarded on the night of June 7 certain factories in the outskirts of Berlin. All planes returned to their bases."

A Navy Ministry spokesman said no further details of the Berlin bombing could be given, but he did not "think" that the bombers were American-made. Planes bought from America were mostly dive bombers assigned to aircraft carriers.

The French did not say what type of planes they used or from where they flew. It is known the French have taken some American-made dive bombers from their fleet to use in land operations.

French reprisal raids have been made on Frankfort and on Munich since the Paris bombing.

It was officially denied that the Germans, in raids on Cherbourg and Havre, had "destroyed" these ports, as claimed by German sources. The French said only a few bombs were dropped.

"Absolutely No Truth" in Berlin Raid Report, Nazis Say.

BERLIN, June 8 (AP).—An authorized spokesman said tonight that there is "absolutely no truth" in a French announcement that factories in the Berlin suburbs had been bombed last night.

"We have been out with spy-glasses all day looking for damage," the spokesman said. "There have been no air raid alarms in Berlin and no rumors of such bombing."

THREE GET DEATH IN FRANCE AS SPIES; 4 SENT TO PRISON

Woman and Another Man Condemned in Absentia by Military Coprt.

MARSEILLE, France, June 8 (AP).—Four men and one woman were sentenced to death and three men and another woman were sentenced to prison today by a military court on charges of espionage.

The woman, Catherine Muratore, and one of the men, Henri Rosa, were sentenced to death in absentia, having escaped arrest. The three who heard the death sentence pronounced were Silvio Muratore, Jean Barrisone and Cesar Chabrier.

The four others convicted of cooperating in the spy ring were Maria Louise Cortese, who was given 20 years at hard labor; Andre Marro, sentenced to life at hard labor; Phiilippe Gastaldi, 20 years, and Paul Castellane, four years.

Details of the ring's operations were not made public.

DUKE OF WINDSOR STILL HAS ARMY POST, WAR OFFICE SAYS

London Announcement Says He Is Visiting French Troops on Italian Border.

LONDON, June 8 (AP).—The War Office announced today that the Duke of Windsor is visiting French troops on the Italian border and will shortly return to the headquarters."

A press notice issued by the Ministry of Information said:

"There is no foundation for the report that the Duke of Windsor has resigned his military appointment. He is paying a visit to French troops on the Italian border and will shortly return to the headquarters of the mission to which he is attached."

The announcement was taken to mean that the former King had exchanged his former job of liaison officer between the French and British forces for another mission, the nature of which is not being announced.

Authoritative sources had said previously that the Duke no longer was liaison officer and had gone to his home on the Riviera. The Duchess is there, too, at their villa at Cap d'Antibes, not far from the Italian frontier.

PARIS SEEKS RACING CORPS OF PARACHUTIST CHASERS

PARIS, June 8 (AP).—Paris appealed today to motorcyclists with racing experience to join a special corps of crack parachutist chasers.

SENATE EXPECTED TO KILL BILL FOR NEW LABOR BOARD

Committee Due to Pigeonhole Wagner Act Changes Approved 2 to 1 by House.

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP).—Despite 2-to-1 House approval, sweeping Wagner Act amendments built around creation of a new National Labor Relations Board were said by informed Senators today to be headed directly for a Senate committee pigeon-hole.

Appealing for Senate action in the face of an adjournment drive, Representative Smith (Dem.), Virginia, chairman of the NLRB Investigating Committee which drafted the original revisions, said that the House vote yesterday demonstrated the country's demand for immediate amendments "as an essential part of the defense program."

"Don't fool yourself," said Representative Hook (Dem.), Michigan, as House debate ended, "this bill will never be law."

Nevertheless, 116 Democrats and 142 Republicans voted for the Smith amendments; 13 Republicans, 113 Democrats and three others against.

The principal Smith amendments would:

1. Abolish the present Labor Board and create a new three-man agency, but permit the President to reappoint the present members—Chairman J. Warren Madden, Edwin S. Smith and William Leiserson.

2. Separate the agency's present judicial and prosecution functions leaving the former with the board and providing an administrator for all other activities.

3. Permit an employer to discuss labor conditions with his workers providing such conversation were not accompanied by threats of coercion or discrimination.

4. Forbid the Labor Board to order reinstatement of any worker who willfully engaged in violence or unlawful destruction or seizure of property.

5. Require the board to obtain the affirmative approval of the workers before ordering a craft union to join an industrial union for collective bargaining purposes.

6. Limit to one year both the period for which the board could order back pay and the period in which charges of violation of the act might be filed.

7 Abolish the board's economic division headed by David J. Saposs.

8. Allow employers to refuse to bargain with alien labor representatives.

Missouri Congressmen voted as follows:

Democrats for—Anderson, Bell, Cannon, Cochran, Duncan, Nelson, Romjue, Williams and Zimmerman.

Republican for—Short.

Democrats against—Hennings and Wood.

Shannon, Democrat, against, paired with Cluett (Rep.), New York.

ADVANCING GERMANS SUPPORTED BY BOMBERS

Communique Mentions Gains on Somme but for Third Day Gives No Details—Air Force Credited With Effective Help.

BERLIN, June 8 (AP). — Germany's drive toward Paris is rolling forward successfully with new ground gained on the lower Somme, the high command announced today, but the official report failed for the third successive day to give specific details of the terrific fighting in northern France.

The Nazi air force was reported taking a big hand in the operations, bombing troop concentrations behind the French lines.

Other developments listed in the communique were:

The number of prisoners taken at Dunkerque, originally placed at 40,000 then 58,000, has risen to 88,000.

A German submarine sank an enemy auxiliary cruiser of 14,000 tons off Northwest Ireland.

The air force renewed attacks on Dover harbor and airports of the south and east coasts of England.

Ten civilians were killed in Allied air raids on one German city but generally little damage was caused by the continued raids.

"Satisfactory" Progress.

"Our operations south of the Somme and the Aisne Canal continue to proceed satisfactorily," the communique said. "On the southern lower Somme also the enemy was pushed back.

"The air force supporting the army fighting on the Southern Somme successfully bombed with strong forces troop concentrations, columns of infantry and artillery positions."

The lack of details in the high command's communiques was said in informed circles to be in line with the command's policy of not giving the enemy "a clearer pic-

A second German thrust pushed south from the Amiens area (2). ITALIAN ENTRANCE INTO WAR IN WEEK FORECAST IN ROME

June 13 or 14 Picked as Probable Date of Start of Hostilities by Informed Sources.

ROME, June 8.—Italy's entrance into the war against Great Britain and France within a week was forecast today in usually well-informed sources.

These informants said Italian action probably would start on the night of June 13 or June 14—next Thursday or Friday—with an announcement by Premier Mussolini after Italy has moved.

This seemed to preclude the possibility of a speech by Il Duce Monday as rumored in Switzerland.

"The Italian people are on the eve of a solemn event," declared Relazioni Internazionali, authoritative Fascist weekly, which, it said will be a "war of supreme independence."

It echoed Mussolini's motto: "Better to live a day as a lion than a

AMIENS APPARENTLY ABANDONED TO NAZIS AS FRENCH FALL BACK

PARIS, June 8 (AP).

As pictured today by Charles Morice, military commentator for Le Petit Parisien, the French line has withdrawn entirely from the Somme, abandoning Amiens to the Germans, and near its eastern extremity passes through Noyon.

Morice traced a line running southeast from Treport, at the mouth of the Bresle River, to Aumale; then eastward ot the south of Amiens, perhaps through Poix, Conty and Ailly, where it would cross the river Noye to reach the rivers Don and Avre; from there on toward Roye and Noyon, from where it would go on to join the Aisne line.

Latest reports place German advance units nearly 20 miles south of the Bresle River in the west and south of Noyon, about 48 miles from Paris, in the center of the Somme-Aisne line. Between Aumale and Noyon the French fell back along a 60-mile front.

BRITON SWIMS THIRD OF WAY HOME FROM CALAIS, IS PICKED UP

Marine Going Strong 8 Miles Out When Ship Comes Along.

LONDON, June 8 (AP).—How a British marine swam eight of the 21 miles from Calais to Dover and was just "getting into my stride" when he was picked up by a small ship ferrying soldiers home from Flanders was told today by Gilbert Rowe of the Queen Victoria Rifles, one of the few surviving defenders of Calais.

Rowe said the marine seemed quite fresh when pulled aboard the ship.

"His first remark was, 'Sure you have enough room for me?'"

Only 24 people are recorded as having swum the English Channel.

SHIPS CARRYING AMERICANS HOME RADIO HOURS OF ARRIVAL

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP). — Two United States liners are due here tomorrow and Monday with 2634 American and alien refugees from the European war zones.

Aboard the President Roosevelt, which radioed today that it expected to dock at 8 p. m. tomorrow, are 720 Americans who boarded the ship at Galway, Ireland, where they assembled from nearby points.

The liner Manhattan reported it would dock at 3 p. m. Monday with 1914 refugees from Italy. Almost half its passengers are aliens, most of them Jews.

ARMED CUNARDER CARINTHIA IS SUNK BY U-BOAT; 4 DEAD

Rest of Crew Saved When Popular Liner Serving as Merchant Cruiser, Is Torpedoed.

LONDON, June 8 (AP).—The Admiralty announced tonight the armed merchant cruiser Carinthia had been torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine with two officers and two seamen killed.

The Carinthia, a Cunarder of 20,277 tons, formerly was in the trans-Atlantic service. The twin screw ship was built in 1925. It was one of 50 merchant cruisers which the British have armed.

Except for the four dead, the crew was saved.

The Admiralty did not say where the Carthinia was sunk. The Germans say they sunk an auxiliary cruiser of 14,000 tons off Northwest Ireland.

The Carinthia was captained by J. F. B. Barrett. It was the second British armed merchant cruiser to be sunk since the war started, and was the largest merchant ship to be sunk by enemy action.

The other was the Rawalpindi, 16,697 tons, sunk by the German pocket battleship Deutschland off Ireland last Nov. 23, with 280 lost.

The Carinthia was in the New York to England passenger service before the war started. It left New York Sept. 3, the day the war began, and was converted into an armed cruiser after reaching Liverpool.

It was particularly famed among Americans for its annual world cruises.

Owned by the Cunard White Star Line, it was 600 feet long and had a 73-foot beam. In peacetime it carried a crew of 405.

It was a sister-ship of the Samaria, which continued in service between New York and England after the war started.

The Carinthia, daubed a camouflage gray before it left New York to join the British navy as an auxiliary ship, had carried thousands of Americans across the Atlantic.

BIG BATTLE RAGING 48 MILES FROM CAPITAL

Germans Throw 20 New Divisions, More Tanks Into Fight — Weygand Counterattacks at Penetration Points, Aided by 150 Bombers.

PARIS, June 8 (AP).—The French withdrew tonight from the Aumale-Noyon line in the center of the Somme front in what a War Ministry spokesman deserbed as a "retirement maneuver."

He added that "extremely heavy losses" were inflicted on the Germans during the withdrawal.

It was a fallback along 60 miles of the front. At one point the battle raged only 48 miles from Paris.

The Germans, the spokesman said, threw 20 fresh infantry divisions into the "biggest day's battle of the war," in addition to the 40 already used.

A flying column of 150 French bombers with an escort of French and British pursuit planes ranged over the battlefield, attacking tank convoys, air fields and troop concentrations. The air activity was officially characterized as "intense" on both sides.

French Counterattack.

On the right French flank, the Nazis established a small bridgehead on the Aisne River in the Soissons sector. This position is being counterattacked incessantly by the French.

The battle raged all the way from the sea to the Chemin-des-Dames road and heights north of the Aisne.

A German tank column on the French left flank was being counterattacked by Allied air forces at Forges-lex-Eaux.

The Germans used seven tank divisions—more than 3000 machines, of which a "certain number" were said by the spokesman to be newly arrived in the battle area.

The two main Nazi thrusts were south from the region of Roye in the Oise valley leading to Paris and around Forges-les-Eaux on the west flank.

The French fought the Germans bitterly on both banks of the Oise River, the struggle centering (here two words censored) 48 miles north of Paris in (here three words censored) the Ourscamp Forest south of Noyon.

This action was in the center of Gen. Maxime Weygand's line, where the Nazis struck hard after between 200 and 300 of their tanks had broken the French left flank near the English Channel.

No Infantry Support.

The German armored units which broke the left flank went around French support points without an infantry followup, and their entrapment seemed probable. French anti-tank squads are in hot pursuit.

Forges-les-Eaux is about 30 miles southeast of Dieppe and 25 miles northeast of Rouen. Rouen, in turn, is 45 miles from Le Havre, vital channel port.

The French War Ministry earlier had admitted that the push by Nazi advance units along the Oise Valley had reached Carlepont, south of Noyon and 53 miles northeast of Paris.

The French Government radio estimated that 400 German tanks were destroyed yesterday. This would make 800 of Germany's original force of 2000 reported de-

French Say Paris Will Be Defended Block by Block If Germans Reach It

By EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER
The Chicago Daily News—Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1940.

PARIS, June 8.—"Paris will never be Hitler's, intact," a French Government spokesman told this correspondent today.

Asked whether, if the worst came to the worst, the French would declare Paris "open" in an effort to spare the beautiful city, the spokesman answered:

"Never! We are confident that Hitler's mechanized hordes will never get to Paris. But should they come so far, you may tell your country men that we shall defend every stone, every clod of earth, every lamp post, every building. For we would rather have our city razed to the ground than fall into the hands of the Germans."

Faced with the decision of choosing between the fate of Warsaw and that of Rotterdam, the French have decided that they prefer the complete destruction of the finest art treasures in the world to any sort of capitulation to the invaders. If the German army wants Paris it will have to fight for it.

Incidentally, there is the fact that against a great city, tanks are completely impotent.

The fighting yesterday and today has been intensely fierce, but so far little has been lost but territory. The Germans have reached the north bank of the Aisne, near Soissons. Still further east, the fighting has been desultory.

This is believed to be the critical day of the battle. The Germans are obviously seeking to break through by main weight of numbers and striking power. The outnumbered French are giving ground systematically, believing that they can eventually knock out enough German tanks to break the hammerhead and that the German infantry has no chance of breaking the line without them.

"Breaking the line" is perhaps a misnomer, since there exists merely a series of positions without complete continuity. The Germans have been systemically bombarding military objectives on all sides of Paris, but so far, except for the one great raid, the capital has been spared.

BOMBER CRASHES IN EAST SUFFOLK

R.A.F. Retaliates by Bombing Reich, Claiming Hits on Refinery Near Hamburg, Aachen Tunnel.

LONDON, June 8 (AP).—Aerial blows, struck and received, form Britain's share of warfare while new land divisions are being organized and equipped for the battle in France.

For the third successive night, German air raiders carried the war into the South and East coast counties of England last night in a series of attacks marked by machine-gunning of houses at a southeast port town.

A communique of the Air Ministry and the Ministry of Home Security said "some bombs were dropped, but little material damage was done and no casualties have been reported."

One Nazi bomber crashed and burned in East Suffolk. Two members of its crew were killed and one captured. The captured German flyer struggled with police, saying he wanted to keep on fighting.

While anti-aircraft units blazed away at the raiders, the Royal Air Force bore the weight of British support for her French ally.

The British air force bombed German troop concentrations at Abbeville throughout yesterday and last night and attacked "military objectives" in Northwest Germany, the Air Ministry announced tonight.

The ministry said the railhead at Hirson and the air field at Abbeville were damaged.

Seventeen German planes were reported destroyed by Royal Air Force fighters yesterday. Twelve British planes were said to be missing.

Raids on Germany.

The Air Ministry said last night that R. A. F. bombers ranged the full length of the German lines and behind the lines in Northern France and into Germany, setting fires at a large oil refinery south of Hamburg, smashing one end of a railway tunnel south of Aachen and slashing at German-held airdromes, rail lines, marching troops and motorized columns.

Air raid alarms echoed last night in 10 English coastal counties—Cambridge, Norfolk, Essex, Suffolk, Kent, Northumberland, Durham, Yorkshire, Lincoln and Hertfordshire.

The machine-gunning plane which struck at the unidentified coast town did not drop bombs, but circled repeatedly at a low altitude. The Ministry of Home Security reported one house badly damaged and other buildings slightly damaged there. Residents escaped injury by huddling for 45 minutes in shelters.

In Norfolk, where the alarm lasted an hour as compared with five minutes in Durham, deep-throated explosions were heard in the distance.

A plane in which Sir Stafford Cripps, new British Ambassador, en route to Russia, was flying to Bucharest was struck by lightning near Salonica. He was unhurt and the plane reached Bucharest safely.

Appeals to United States.

The Yorkshire Post, influential northern newspaper which often has been called the mouthpiece of War Minister Anthony Eden, said that responsible American opinion soon might come to believe that the United States should declare war on Germany.

The newspaper predicted this opinion would want to "give the utmost moral weight to America's condemnation of the foul ideas of conquest that Hitler is rushing into effect," and expressed hope that "America will decide to send us war supplies at extreme war speed."

The press generally played up the speeding of United States plans to send armaments to the Allies.

The Daily Telegraph, in its leading editorial, said:

"The master word is 'what thou doest, do quickly.' Anything that hastens victory is of immeasurable value to the whole world."

As the Government heightened air raid precautions, Home Secretary Sir John Anderson broadcast an appeal for volunteers to man defenses and said compulsory powers could be invoked if necessary.

GERMANS TO MEXICO, CHILE

HONOLULU, June 8 (AP).—High Government sources said yesterday that more than 150 German chemists and engineers had passed through Honolulu in the last six months en route to Mexico and Chile.

These sources said every vessel on the Japan-South America run carried Germans who reached Japanese ports by way of Siberia.

stroyed since the battle of the Somme began.

"Tank Hunt" Is On.

The results of the drive against Forges-les-Eaux were still undisclosed here, but military commentators said the Allies were engaged in "a tank hunt," aimed at annihilation of machines and crews.

Fighting ranged from the channel resort of Treport, to the Aisne River, where the eastern end of the combat zone was marked by the villages of Bourg and Comin at the junction of the Oise-Aisne Canal.

Between there and the Maginot Line German batteries kept up their artillery bombardments, drawing fire from the French gunners.

German attempts yesterday to cross the Aisne east of Soissons failed completely, military advices said. Resumption of fighting today began north of Soissons where the French continued to hold their positions on the north bank of the Aisne.

Northwest of Soissons advance guards battled on the north bank of the Oise. Fighting was particularly heavy in the glades of the Ourscamp forest.

Heavy German Losses.

Allied aviation continued to attack German tank and motorized columns with bombs and aerial cannon. Hundreds of tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped on German rear guards, causing enormous losses, Paris advices said.

A French military spokesman said the western part of the Weygand line, withdrawn altogether below the river Somme, now follows an almost straight line from the upper Bresle to the region south of Ham before joining the Oise and Aisne defenses.

Nazi tank units in the west swung the German attack south and slightly west of the original Allied defense lines on the wooded heights along the Bresle River.

French support groups moved in behind the German tanks immediately, the commentator reported, with "all necessary dispositions" taken to isolate the armored spearhead.

This was typical of the shock-absorbing, tank-trapping qualities of the defenses mapped out by Gen. Weygand.

With Weygand himself at the front, the French troops which withdrew to new positions along the Aisne River, on the eastern part of the battle line, carried out his command for strategic withdrawal in perfect order, the spokesman said.

He added that they took up their re-established line only after having fulfilled their mission of harrying the German tanks.

Nazis Massing Tanks.

The military reporter said the French estimated the Nazis have about two-thirds of all their available tanks in action at present along the Somme-Aisne front.

The combat was renewed this morning with full violence but the French high command was reported "satisfied" with the progress of the fighting.

Two divisions of German tanks—between 800 and 1000—were said to have been brought from Abbeville, near the mouth of the Somme, to the central front to join some thousand others already operating in the region south of Peronne.

French .75's continued to blast the rolling fortresses, the spokesman said. He declared that a single battery of these famous guns destroyed 25 tanks yesterday.

Nazi Air Raids in France.

At the same time Nazi planes conducted scouting and bombing expeditions against Allied communications. A number of bombs were dropped on railway lines leading west, north and south from the Paris region, the spokesman said.

He said several ports also were bombed, but did not identify them by name.

The French morning communique:

"Armored enemy units reported last night near the upper valley of the Bresle (River) accentuated their progression.

"Advanced detachments reached a point in the region of Forges-les-Eaux.

"The situation remains the same on all the rest of the front."

Infantry action was fiercest on the Aisne, east of Soissons in the region of the heights of Chemin des Dames.

There the Germans unleashed a violent artillery barrage to cover construction of a bridge they succeeded in throwing across the river. But the French, under Gen. Weygand's order "to defend our positions without thought of retreat," held onto the left bank as the Nazi detachments, at the heavy cost of men described by Gen. Weygand in last night's communique, streamed across under raking French machine-gun fire.

Supporting Units Stopped.

While the Allied advance guards in the west withdrew, the supporting points of their deeply-staggered lines were reported holding fast. The Nazis' light armored cars and motorcycle troops, which after the Meuse break-through at Sedan, had set fires and cut communications in Artois and Picardy, were not able to follow the heavy tanks.

The German tanks pushed on past the machine-gun and light artillery nests which the Weygand defense system holds back for lighter targets, such as infantry and motorcycle detachments. Waiting for the tanks were both the point-blank fire of hidden French 75's and more Allied planes which, with light cannon aboard, swooped down on the tanks firing at their light top armor plate.

In the course of these raids and others on munition and fuel bases, Allied pilots shot down 21 Nazi planes, a communique said.

Passage of the Nazi tank fleets across the Somme evidently was prepared by reckless German bridge-building engineers. Allied machine-guns and artillery have had the north bank of the river under constant fire for days.

Military observers described the terrain near the coast, between the Bresle and the Somme, as poor for defense but possessing, in its swamps, excellent natural traps for tanks. Many of them were said to have bogged down.

MILLION NAZIS IN FIGHT, BRITISH SAY

LONDON, June 8 (AP).—British military circles said today that the number of German effectives in the Somme-Aisne battle in France were "around 1,000,000 men."

These sources said "the Germans may not yet have delivered their main attack."

The official "eyewitness" correspondent with the British Expeditionary Force on the Somme front reported that British tanks were hurled into battle yesterday to meet the German advance south of the Somme and have given much assistance to the infantry.

Several of the tanks captured a detachment of German infantry, the correspondent said. He described the British as "fighting magnificently against heavy odds but obliged to withdraw their front slightly" as the Germans augmented the infantry attack with motorized machine gun units.

He said the German prisoners "told a story of great hardship on their way to the front," saying they marched 30 miles a day, arrived in exhausted condition on the Somme and were flung into the attack the next day.

Comparatively few British have been reported still in France, although dispatches have told of Scots fighting shoulder to shoulder with the French. Britain has stated that most of the expeditionary force's mechanical units were lost in the Flanders fighting, but an undisclosed number apparently still are in the fight in France.

NEW BRITISH ENVOY TO SPAIN SEES FRANCO

Some Shout "Gibraltar" as Sir Samuel Hoare Goes to Palace at Madrid.

MADRID, June 8 (AP). — Sir Samuel Hoare, presenting his credentials as Great Britain's new Ambassador to Spain, assured Generalissimo Francisco Franco today that Britain wished to see "Spain strong, powerful and exercising in Europe the influence that is due her historic position."

Franco's Moorish cavalry escorted Sir Samuel and the British Embassy staff to the royal palace.

The new Ambassador said he found "much that is common" between Britain and Spain.

"This community of interest," he added, "makes me confidently hope that good relations between Spain and Great Britain will daily become more intimate and friendly."

Throngs along Sir Samuel's route to and from the palace saluted him with outstretched arms. There were scattered groups of Falangistas students who shouted "Gibraltar," but approximately 500 guards surrounding the palace prevented any incidents.

(Certain Spanish elements recently have demanded the return to Spain of Gibraltar by Great Britain.)

Replying to Hoare's felicitations, Generalissimo Francisco Franco expressed appreciation of Hoare's "friendly attitude" toward Spain during the civil war and promised the "collaboration of my government and new Spain" in harmonious relations between the two countries.

ture of the situation." However, it was said the advance was proceeding on schedule.

German dive bombers attacked and destroyed four 32-ton enemy tanks at one point, it was announced officially. The bombers are assisting land troops in many instances, it was said.

71 Planes Reported Downed.

Acknowledging only five German losses, the high command said the Allies yesterday lost 71 war planes—29 shot down in air fights, 25 brought down by anti-aircraft guns and the others destroyed on the ground.

On the Norwegian front, Nazi flyers supporting ground forces near Narvik, Norway's Arctic iron ore port, were said to have set a tank camp afire in an attack on Allied positions and to have scored two hits with heavy bombs on a cruiser.

Following a break-through all along the Somme-Aisne line yesterday, German sources said, the Nazi steamroller is again in motion and blitzkreig tactics which proved so successful in Poland, Holland and Belgium have been resumed.

Authorized sources said three days of continuous assaults had proved France's so-called Weygand line is "unstable," and the German war machine was reported attacking simultaneously at four points in an effort to smash stubborn French resistance.

Outline in Hitler's Paper.

Adolf Hitler's own newspaper, Volkischer Beobachter, said the drives were developing in the regions of Abbeville, Amiens, Peronne and the Oise-Aisne Canal. The thrust southward from Abbeville was aimed at the important west coast port of Le Havre, while the other three pointed directly at Paris.

The onrushing German units, strongly supported by dive bombers, were said to be encountering massed French forces everywhere along the improvised Weygand defense positions. However, informed persons said, the French positions no longer constitute a major obstacle.

The Nazi air force was said to have played a major part in yesterday's German gains along a front extending more than 60 miles eastward from the English Channel, bombing troops and roads.

German warplanes also showered the French port of Cherbourg with bombs, the spokesman declared, while Essex and other regions on the Southern and Southeastern coasts of England were again "visited" by Nazi bombers. (A radio correspondent in Berlin said the Cherbourg waterfront had been set afire by bombs.)

Volkischer Beobachter said the French were fighting "bravely and stubbornly to hold their lines," but said the German attackers nevertheless were making headway.

Line Spongy, Experts Say.

German war analysts, amplifying official reports, said Nazi attackers had found the French line along the Somme-Aisne front "spongy." They agreed, however, that the Allied commander-in-chief, Gen. Maxime Weygand, had made excellent strategic use of available terrain in mapping his defenses.

They explained that the chief characteristic of the French line was its "mattress-like" ability to absorb blows, yielding at the point of impact but slowly bringing the thrust to a halt.

Action along the Somme-Aisne front absorbed public attention almost to the exclusion of developments farther east, where the high command said German forces were pressing close to the main Maginot line defenses south of Saarbrueck-en.

The press asserted that France had greatly weakened its forces along the Maginot line to bolster the troops holding the Somme-Aisne front.

German summaries of the latest raids over German territory by British bombers disclosed a concentration of activity south of the Ruhr and east of Luxembourg. It was from this vicinity that the heaviest drive in the now completed Belgian campaign was launched.

Text of Communique.

The daily communique follows:

"Our operations south of the Somme and the Aisne Canal continue to proceed successfully. On the southern lower Somme also the enemy was pushed back.

"The air force supporting the army ground fighting on the southern Somme successfully bombed with strong forces troop concentrations, columns of infantry and artillery positions.

"The number of prisoners taken at Dunkerque increased to 88,000. The force executed armed reconnaissance against the British, and on the south coast of England units of the English air force as well as the harbor were bombarded.

"At Narvik, the air force supported army units fighting there by effective attacks on enemy positions. Gasoline tanks were set afire and one enemy cruiser sustained two severe bomb hits.

"A German U-boat off northwest Ireland sank an enemy auxiliary cruiser of 14,000 tons.

"Nocturnal enemy air raids on German territory generally caused immaterial damage. In one city the residential section was hit and 10 civilians killed.

"Total air losses of the opponents yesterday amounted to 71 airplanes of which 29 were shot down in air fights, 25 by anti-aircraft and the rest destroyed on the ground. Five of our own planes are missing."

PERSHING URGES U.S. TO SEND GUNS, PLANES TO ALLIES

'They Are Holding Our Front Line,' General Says — Favors Compulsory Military Training.

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP). — Gen. John J. Pershing urged today that the United States send to the Allies unlimited quantities of airplanes, artillery, small arms and ammunition as well as food, clothing and medical supplies.

Appealing in a statement for contributions to the Red Cross, the commander of the American World War army asserted that the Allies were fighting "a war for civilization" and that they were "holding our front line."

"We have a vital concern in the outcome," he said.

In talking to reporters a short time previously, Pershing said he was heartily in favor of compulsory military service in this country. He added that if such a plan were adopted an immediate expansion of the army would be possible in case of a threatened invasion. He recalled that the training of recruits for World War duty had required many months.

Asserting in his statement that "there is no time to lose," Pershing continued:

"The Allies need every encouragement it is possible for us to give.

"Let us open our hearts and give, give, give, in Christian sympathy, and in response to the tremendous needs that are staring us in the face."

"Our people well know the dire need of the hundreds of thousands of Allied refugees. In our minds' eye, we behold with infinite pity the streams of aged men, and women, and the terrified children, fleeing from their burning homes, ruthlessly machine-gunned from the air as they haste along the highways seeking even temporary safety against the horrors of war."

Meanwhile, James J. McEntee, CCC director, announced today that the Civilian Conservation Corps was prepared to equip and operate a total of 63 schools for training motor mechanics.

REDS WATCH NAZI GAINS FOR EFFECT ON BALTIC POLICY

Moscow Alert to Possible Infringement in View of German Conquests, Say Reports at London.

LONDON, June 8 (AP).—Reliable London sources said today that Soviet Russia was watching closely Adolf Hitler's military advances, alert to the possibility of infringement on Soviet interests.

There has been no whisper of actual conflict between Russian and German aims, but the Nazi grasp on the low countries, Denmark and the southern lobe of Norway has had the natural effect of attracting Soviet "attention," these sources said.

They pointed out that the Soviet Union has guaranteed the Baltic States under its Baltic defense program and therefore is bound to be concerned over anything bearing on them as well as on Russia's own Baltic position.

Germany's control of the Skaggerak-Baltic outlet to the North Sea—and its territorial expansion are regarded as falling definitely in this category of interest.

Lithuanians Visit Moscow.

The visit to Moscow of Lithuanian Prime Minister Merkis, accompanied by a Foreign Office expert and a military representative, gave added weight to reports that the Soviet is seeking to broaden its Baltic security program.

Reports from Italy indicated an improvement in diplomatic relations with Russia which was expected to result in the return of Soviet Ambassador Nicolai Gorelchin to Rome and Italian Ambassador Augusto Rosso to Moscow. Russia recalled Gorelchin because of anti-Soviet demonstrations in Italy during the Finnish war, and Rosso subsequently was summoned home.

This would be in line with Russia's professed role of a nation interested primarily in its internal affairs, and concerned in the international situation only as it reflects on these affairs.

Community of Interest.

The background of Russian suspicion of Italy and recent assertions of Soviet circles in London that Russian and Allied interests in the Black Sea and the Eastern Mediterranean are parallel also fit in with this new watchfulness over German conquests.

Soviet circles here have indicated a distrust of the motives of capitalistic Britain in the latest British and French attempt to make friends with Russia. But they also have made plain that if the Allies prove by deeds that they are sincere, there would be no reason why these governments should not be on good terms.

British sources assert that Prime Minister Churchill's Government is genuinely anxious to gain Russian friendship, and point to the naming of Sir Stafford Cripps as Ambassador to Moscow, to meet the first Soviet condition for better relations, as an indication of the lengths to which Britain will go to prove its sincerity.

Russia Sending First Minister to Rumania in Two and a Half Years.

BUCHAREST, June 8 (AP). — New Russian diplomatic activity designed to oppose any move to upset the Balkan status quo was foreseen in the announcement last night that Moscow is sending a Minister Plenipotentiary to Rumania.

Russia had refused to send a Minister here for two and a half years as a result of the flight of Feodor Budenko, Soviet envoy who turned anti-Communist in 1938. Moscow charged Rumanian officials connived at his getaway.

As a gesture of mutual friendship, Rumania is expected to replace its Minister to Moscow with a more important personage.

Plans for Soviet action in event of an Italian move in the Balkans are expected to be discussed by the Soviet Minister to Sofia, who is to stop off here en route home.

BERLIN, June 8 (AP).—The British Ambassador to Brussels, Sir Lancelot Oliphant, was captured with British Expeditionary Force troops left behind in France, DNB, official German news agency, announced today.

The agency said that since Sir Lancelot "was captured in the course of military actions on French soil and under certain suspicious circumstances, his case will be closely examined."

5 INSANE CONVICTS ESCAPE AT FULTON

Four Handcuff Two Guards to Bed in State Hospital.

FULTON, Mo., June 8 (AP).—Four insane convicts, after overpowering two attendants and handcuffing them to a bed, escaped from the criminal insane building at State Hospital No. 1 here last night. A fifth inmate escaped alone some time later.

The four making the break together were Henry Richardson, 32 years old, sentenced from Saline County for theft; James F. Dunivan, 33, St. Louis, sentenced for robbery; Merl W. Morton, sentenced from Jasper County for receiving stolen property, and Harry Miller, 55, St. Louis, sentenced for robbery.

They threatened the attendants Clarence Staats and W. H. Young, with knives, scissors and a razor, took their keys and handcuffed them, with another patient, to the iron bed. Then, with the aid of bed sheets and a table they scaled the walls of the bullpen into the recreation yard.

The fifth inmate, Clarence Landreth, 26, sentenced from Vernon County for robbery, disappeared after completing his work in the building's kitchen, where he was assigned. He was not missed until this morning and it was not known immediately how he obtained his freedom.

SWISS AIR PATROLS DOWN TWO GERMAN WARPLANES

Bomber Forced to Land, Messerschmitt Attacked; Two Swiss Pilots Are Killed.

BERN, June 8 (AP).—A German bomber was forced to land and a Nazi Messerschmitt fighting plane was shot down today by Swiss air patrols in widely separated parts of Switzerland.

Two Swiss pilots were reported killed, their plane shot down by German flyers over the Jura Mountains.

Swiss army patrol planes, which already had downed seven German planes in the past month, shot down the Messerschmitt over Tengen, in Lucerne Canton, deep inside Switzerland. It could not be learned immediately whether the German crew was killed or parachuted to safety.

The second German plane was forced by Swiss fighters to land in Solothurn Canton, northwest of Bern, near the French frontier.

A Swiss fighting plane, manned by two Lieutenants, was shot down during a battle between Swiss patrol planes and a group of Nazi bombers over the mountains across the Doubs River from France.

RUMANIA CALLS 5 GROUPS OF RESERVISTS TO COLORS

Number of Men Estimated at More Than 100,000 in Diplomatic Quarters.

BUCHAREST, June 8 (AP).—The Rumanian War Ministry called five categories of reservists to the colors today.

More than 100,000 men were affected by the call, diplomatic quarters estimated. The War Ministry itself did not disclose how many were included in the five groups.

ALLIED SEA POWER HAS INCREASED IN WAR, LONDON SAYS

Reports Addition, Besides Warships, of 50 Armed Merchant Cruisers, 1500 Minor Craft.

LONDON, June 8 (AP).—An official source stated today that "the balance of naval strength in favor of the Allies is now far greater than at the outbreak of the war."

The statement said:

"Since the beginning of the war in addition to reinforcements of warships in all classes except battleships the navy has been strengthened by more than 50 armed merchant cruisers and more than 1500 minor war vessels and auxiliary craft of which 58 have been lost.

"The French navy is a very powerful and rapidly growing force.

Aid From Small Allies.

"The Allied fleets have been reinforced by active co-operation of Polish, Norwegian and Dutch naval forces.

"During the next few months the royal navy will receive a further large increase in strength comprising every category of warship from battleships to motor torpedo boats and a very large number of auxiliary craft."

The statement listed the following losses: One of 15 capital ships, one of seven aircraft carriers, two of 62 cruisers, 20 of 185 destroyers, eight of 58 submarines, six of 100 minesweepers, sloops, patrol vessels and gunboats.

Million Tons Building.

The statement said nearly a million tons of warships are being built in British shipyards and "the contrast between German naval weakness and the great and growing strength of the Allied navies has apparently alarmed the German high command."

"This anxiety is shown by German efforts to convince neutral opinion by constant issue of groundless claims of naval sinkings that German air power has achieved spectacular ascendancy over British naval power," the statement said. It added:

"Concentrated air power in close proximity to its own airdromes can inflict losses on the less strongly armored naval units. It has signally failed, however, to annul the decisive advantages conferred by sea power. A recent and striking example was the successful withdrawal of the Allied armies from the Belgian coast."

NAZIS PREDICT GIBRALTAR WILL BE TAKEN BY SPAIN

Assert Nation Will Be Trustee for All Living or Trading in Mediterranean.

BERLIN, June 8 (AP). — The authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland predicted today that Gibraltar would become Spanish as it was before Great Britain made it a Mediterranean stronghold.

The commentary said that areas opposite Spain on the African coast, apparently meaning some in addition to Spanish Morocco, "must be in Spanish hands."

"Spain in this position will have the function of an independent trustee for all nations living on the Mediterranean or doing business there.

"A great, proud, independent Spain in the new Europe as a friend of the Axis partners (Germany and Italy) will correspond not only to moral obligations among the three states but also to the real interests of the two Axis Powers.

27 DEMOCRATS OUT FOR 9 POSTS AS CIRCUIT JUDGE

Outstanding Among Primary Contests—All Incumbents but Joynt Seeking Renomination.

LAWYERS' GROUP HAS SLATE OF 12

City Committee Pledged to Support These Candidates — Five Now on Bench Not Indorsed.

Outstanding among the contests for party nominations in the Aug. 6 primary is that of 27 men for the nine places on the Democratic ticket for Circuit Judgeships. The nine to be elected in November will constitute exactly half of the bench. Time for filing candidacies expired last midnight.

Twelve of the aspirants were approved by the committee of Democratic lawyers established by the Democratic City Committee for the purpose of choosing a judicial slate. The city committee, which has a large voice in the selection of nominees in the primary, has agreed to make its choices from the slate of the lawyers' group. However, it would be possible for the machine organizations in the various wards, dominated by the individual committeemen and committeewomen, to depart from this plan, and doubtless strong pressure will be exerted on them to slate some of the other candidates.

The nine incumbents whose terms are expiring are Democrats, as are all the other Circuit Judges. Judge John W. Joynt is the only one of the nine not seeking renomination. Only three incumbents are on the lawyers' committee slate.

Lawyers' Candidates.

Candidates on the Lawyers' Committee slate are: Robert J. Kirkwood, William K. Koener and Harry F. Russell, incumbents; Frank B. Coleman, former Circuit Judge; William L. Mason, president of the Board of Aldermen; Louis A. McKeown, First Associate City Counselor; Francis E. Williams, former Assistant Circuit Attorney; Clem F. Storckman, George C. Mackay, Vincent L. Boisaubin, Frank E. Morris, former Clerk of Probate Court, and Harry C. Barker.

Incumbents seeking renomination, not on the lawyers' slate, are: William S. Connor, James E. McLaughlin, Eugene L. Padberg, Edward M. Ruddy and Eugene J. Sartorius.

Other Democratic candidates for Circuit Judge are: Joseph A. Linder, 3639 Bamberger; Michael J. Ebeling, 6136 Delmar, Assistant City Counselor; James F. Nangle, 6209 Washington, Police Judge; Henry W. Simpson, 3733 Lindell, Assistant Circuit Attorney; Herman D. Olion, 5804 Cates, Assistant Circuit Attorney; Ford W. Thompson, 4616 Pershing; Louis E. Zuckerman, 4646 Delmar; Robert Y. Woodward, 5743 Mimika, Assistant Circuit Attorney; A. Courtney Davis, 1 North Broadway; Morris A. Shenker, 4140 Washington.

12 Republicans in Race.

There are 12 candidates on the Republican side for the nine places as Circuit Judges, including nine approved by a similar committee of Republican lawyers set up by the Republican City Committee.

Those slated by the lawyers' committee are: Arthur H. Bader, Wilson A. Taylor and Claude O. Pearcy, former Circuit Judges; Alroy S. Phillips, former chairman of the State Workmen's Compensation Commission; William J. Blesse, former Justice of the Peace; Forder Buckley, James V. Frank, Alfred L. Grattendick and Ellison A. Poulton.

Republicans running for Circuit Judge, not slated by the lawyers' group, are: W. T. Robert McMillin, 4032 South Broadway; Vourdon Fricke, 4096 Holly Hills, and Joseph Letorney. The Republican City Committee has accepted the lawyers' committee slate, and indications are that the city committee members are not likely to deviate from the slate to any large extent, if at all.

Bar Polls Undetermined.

The Executive Committee of the Bar Association of St. Louis yesterday rejected a proposal of the Lawyers' Association of the Eighth Judicial Circuit for a joint poll of St. Louis lawyers on judicial candidates. The committee will meet next Friday to decide whether the Bar Association shall carry on its own poll. The Lawyers' Association has yet to decide what it will do.

There will be no primary contests for Circuit Attorney, the respective choices of the party lawyers' committees being unopposed. They are Thomas C. Hennings Jr., now Eleventh District Congressman, Democrat, and Joseph F. Holland, former Assistant Attorney-General and former Deputy State Insurance Superintendent, Republican.

Court of Criminal Correction.

One other local judicial office is to be filled—Judge of Court of Criminal Correction, Division No. 2. Joseph L. Simpson, incumbent, is opposed for the Democratic nomination by David W. FitzGibbon, 5919 Bartmer, former First Assistant Prosecuting Attorney. The Democratic lawyers' committee did not include this office on its slate. The Republican candidate slated by the lawyers' committee of his party, Roy A. Fish, 5830 Pershing, is opposed by M. S. Karner, 3951 Lafayette, and Fred Weissmann, 1722A Franklin.

For Judge of the Supreme Court of Missouri, Division No. 2, and for an unexpired term on the St. Louis Court of Appeals there will be no primary contests, with the candidates all indorsed by the respective party lawyers' groups. Those who will be nominated for Supreme Judge are George Robb Ellison, Maryville, incumbent, Democrat, and Frank E. Atwood, Jefferson City, a former Judge of this court, Republican.

Nominees for the unexpired term on the Appellate Court will be William C. Hughes, Montgomery City, incumbent, Democrat, and John W. Calhoun, St. Louis, former Circuit Judge, Republican. Unopposed for the full term on this court is William Dee Becker, St. Louis, incumbent, Republican, while there are three Democratic candidates—Lyon Anderson, Webster Groves, slated by the Democratic lawyers' committee: Clyde W. Wagner, St. Louis, and John F. Gillespie, Kirkwood.

Contests for Congress.

In both the Eleventh and Twelfth Congressional Districts there will be active contests in both parties, while in the Thirteenth, covering the northern part of the city, candidates are unopposed. They are John J. Cochran, Democrat, veteran Congressman, and W. S. Sanford, Republican.

Candidates in the other two districts are:

Eleventh—John B. Sullivan, secretary to Mayor Dickmann and a party committeeman; Richard A. Bryan, 5262 Maple and Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Ryder, labor leader and a referee of the Workmen's Compensation Commission, who ran for Congress in 1932, Democrats; Albert A. Huber, Mark Twain Hotel; Louis P. Hermann, Louis M. Feldman and Charles J. Riley, Republicans.

Twelfth—C. Arthur Anderson, Lemay, incumbent; State Senator Raleigh McCormick, Webster Groves; John E. Mooney, Ladue, former St. Louis County Counselor; John J. Houlihan, 6744 Oakland, and Walter C. Meyer, Kirkwood, Democrats; Otis L. Clonts, St. Louis; Russell J. Horsefield, University City, and Walter C. Ploeser, St. Louis, Republicans. The district covers the southern part of the city and all the county.

Other Local Contests.

Candidates for other local offices are:

Sheriff—Thomas R. Madden, Public Administrator; Joseph J. Mestres, Park Commissioner and a party committeeman; Thomas H. Quinn, Constable and a party committeeman; Oscar G. Schaefer, State Oil Inspector and a party committeeman, and Louis G. Waldman, Commissioner of Weights and Measures, Democrats; Henry L. Berger, 4563A North Broadway, a party committeeman; Thomas R. ST. LOUIS GROUP TO TRY TO FORM AMBULANCE UNIT

25 Business and Professional Men Hear Representatives of Volunteer Corps.

A St. Louis committee will be formed to make plans to organize and finance a section for the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps now operating in France, Edwin B. Meissner, president of the St. Louis Car Co., announced following a talk by representatives of the corps before a group of 25 business and professional men yesterday at the Missouri Athletic Club.

John F. Hasey, a captain in the corps, who has just returned from service in Europe, explained that three sections, each with 22 ambulances, were attached to the regular French army. The personnel consists largely of university students and young Americans who were employed abroad when the war broke out.

The sections, he said, were financed by contributions from individuals in the United States, the cost of purchase and maintenance of an ambulance and driver for six months being $2000. The drivers work without pay but are supplied with uniforms and necessaries. The three sections have been named for John J. Pershing, Benjamin Franklin and Myron T. Herrick.

Hasey, who is 23 years old, was employed by a Paris jewelry firm when the war began. Nelson Morris of Chicago, member of the corps' national executive committee, who is touring the country with Hasey, asked that St. Louis provide an ambulance section.

EASTERN LINES TO FIGHT FRISCO RATE FOR COAL

To Protest to I. C. C. Against Trainload Charge for Arkansas-St. Louis — Suspension Possible.

A protest against the Frisco Railroad's proposed freight rate of $2 a ton for trainload shipments of Arkansas smokeless coal to St. Louis will be filed with the Interstate Commerce Committee Monday by a committee representing the Eastern railways. The Frisco was so notified yesterday.

The Frisco's rate is scheduled to be effective June 24, but in view of the protest it is possible that the commission will suspend the rate pending a hearing. J. Russell Coulter, general traffic manager for the Frisco, said today suspension of the rate probably would cause months of delay and make it impossible for the lower rate to be of any benefit to St. Louis for stocking smokeless fuel for early winter use.

The present rate on Arkansas coal for carload shipments is $2.75 a ton. A reduction was made recently from the old rate of $3.05. The $2 trainload rate was proposed as an emergency measure to assist in the St. Louis fight on smoke.

The Municipal Smoke Elimination Committee has arranged with Arkansas mine operators for a price of $2 a ton for a modified mine-run coal at the mines, subject to approval of the price by the Federal Bituminous Coal Division. It was the committee's view that with a $2 freight rate this coal could be sold in St. Louis for summer delivery at about $5.50 a ton, allowing $1.50 for dealer's margin. The price for later delivery would have been somewhat higher.

Southwestern and Western railroads approved the Frisco's $2 rate. Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann and Chairman James L. Ford Jr. of the Municipal Smoke Elimination Committee sent telegrams to the presidents of all the Eastern lines operating in St. Louis appealing to them to support the rate in order to help St. Louis overcome its smoke problem.

Coulter said he understood the decision of the Eastern lines to oppose the rate was based on their fear that it would constitute a precedent for lower coal rates generally.

PERIOD FOR FILING AS CANDIDATES IN MISSOURI CLOSES

4 of Each Major Party Out for Governor—8 Republicans, 3 Democrats in Senate Race.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 8.—There are four Democratic and four Republican candidates for the party nominations for Governor, following the close of the period for filing candidacies last midnight. In the race for United States Senator there are eight Republicans but only the original three Democratic aspirants. The number of Republican contenders for the latter office is a record for recent years.

A fifth entry last night in the contest for the Democratic nomination for Attorney-General was a surprise. The candidate is Sheriff James L. Williams of Jackson County (Kansas City), defendant in an ouster suit filed by Attorney-General Roy McKittrick, pending in the Supreme Court of Missouri, which alleges official misconduct. Williams asserted, on filing, that he was a victim of politics and was taking this means of carrying his case to the people. McKittrick is seeking renomination.

The Secretary of State received, in all, the candidacies of 184 Democrats and 106 Republicans for State administrative offices, judicial posts, both houses of Congress and the State Senate. Candidates for the major positions are:

United States Senator—Maurice M. Milligan, Richmond; Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, and Harry S. Truman, incumbent, Independence, Democrats; William E. Byers, Kansas City; John R. Davis, St. Louis; Manvel H. Davis, Kansas City; Dr. H. G. Grosby, Clayton; Harold H. Milligan, Clayton; Ewing Young Mitchell, Springfield; Paul O. Peters, St. Louis, and David M. Proctor, Kansas City, Republicans.

Candidates for Governor.

Governor—Circuit Judge Ferd J. Frankenhoff, St. Joseph; Excise Commissioner Lawrence McDaniel, St. Louis; State Senator Allen McReynolds, Carthage, and Guy W. Runnion, Kansas City, Democrats; Fred A. Bottger, St. Louis; Forres C. Donnell, Webster Groves; Claude L. Lambert, Kansas City, and J. Grant Frye, Ilmo, Republicans.

Lieutenant-Governor — Dr. John G. Christy, Festus, now Speaker of the House; Frank G. Harris, Columbia, incumbent, and Dan Porter, Marshall, Democrats; James E. Ford, California; Julius J. Scheske, St. Louis; William P. Elmer, Salem, and George Bartholomaeus, Hartsburg, Republicans.

Secretary of State—Dwight H. Brown, Poplar Bluff, incumbent; Leslie J. Eggers, St. Louis, and Grover Cleveland Smith, Holt Summit, Democrats; Lloyd (Boots) Miller, Springfield, Republican.

State Auditor—Robert E. Holliway, Jefferson City, and Forrest Smith, Richmond, incumbent, Democrats; Hillard Selck, Boonville, and J. T. Waddill, Kirksville, Republicans.

Five Seek Treasurership.

State Treasurer—Wilson Bell, Potosi, and State Senator T. E. (Tex) Roberts, Diamond, Democrats; Henry C. Asel, Jefferson City; Scott Peters, Jefferson City, and Louis L. Hicks, Clayton, Republicans.

Attorney-General — Roy McKittrick, Salisbury, incumbent; State Representative John D. Taylor, Keytesville; Drake Watson, New London; State Senator W. B. Whitlow, Fulton, and Sheriff James L. Williams, Kansas City, Democrats; State Senator Ray Mabee, Unionville, Republican.

The only minority party filings were by two Socialists, Jed A. High, Joplin, running for Governor, and W. F. Rinck, Kansas City, Fifth District Congressman. Usually minority party nominations are made by the party committees after the primary.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN HOME WITH PISTOL NEAR HER HAND

Mrs. Evelyn Hedger of Belleville Shot in Forehead; Husband Says He Left After Quarrel.

Mrs. Evelyn Hedger, 19 years old, was found dead, a bullet wound in her forehead and a pistol near her right hand, today in an unfurnished room of the two-room cottage she occupied in Belleville with Allen Hedger, 26, an unemployed coal miner whom she married last September.

Hedger, who said he left home after a quarrel at 5 p. m. yesterday, asked Sheriff's deputies to accompany him to the cottage, with the explanation, "I think my wife is going to kill herself, or is already dead."

Later, they said, he related that he had returned to the cottage at 11 p. m., found the door locked and spent the night with his parents in Swansea, north of Belleville.

ITALIAN ENTRANCE INTO WAR IN WEEK FORECAST IN ROME

For the sake of foreigners, the weekly said, it listed six reasons why Italy is going to war:

6 Reasons for War.

1. Italy has followed a peace policy for 18 years seeking to "balance positions, shorten distances and impose new, more humane political formulas."

2. France and England always have opposed Mussolini's policies.

3. When the "Italian people asked for land to work they were offered deserts."

4. Everything Italian, in domestic policy as well as in the international field, has been ostentatiously undervalued by the French and English.

5. Democratic Europe, which has deprecated the Italian people, can only be fought. The Italian people have reached the limit of their patience. . . . This war must solve territorial questions for the Italian people which are Nice, Corsica, Tunisia and Jibuti.

6. The life of the Italian people is subject to French and English control. Italy must insure her independence on the sea.

Negotiations With Allies.

A report that former Premier Pierre Laval of France is in Rome trying to reach an Italian-French settlement persisted today, but, as always for the last month, it was denied in French circles.

French and Italian officials remained silent on what negotiations have gone on between them, but authoritative Italian comment was that French concessions were made too late.

The British and French are expected to issue a white paper on the negotiations with Italy when it enters the war.

Anti-aircraft artillery encircling Rome is being reinforced, officials disclosed.

Art Treasures Stored.

All Italian museums have been closed and emptied of their art treasures which, authorities said, will be packed away in safe places against air attacks.

Italians who formerly lived in Malta were said to be volunteering for service in "action groups" to regain that British island for Italy.

Stefani, official news agency, reported that French authorities in Morocco were seeking "by every means" to suppress "irredentist incidents" which, it said, had broken out around Fez and Maknes, "well-known center of Moroccan nationalism."

Another Stefani dispatch charged that Italians trying to leave the protectorate were "given the run-around on various pretexts, preventing them from leaving Morocco."

The Rome Insurance Guild recommended that life insurance policies be limited to 200,000 lire (about $10,000) each.

Air Service Curtailed.

An official announcement said that air mail service between Rome and Rio De Janeiro, which has been on a weekly basis, has been reduced to one round trip monthly.

Air line service to Haifa, Bagdad and Bassora was suspended, and officials said that planes will fly only as far as Rhodes until further notice.

The Rome-Sardinia steamship line also suspended service.

The troops departed for the South less than 24 hours after the appointment of 74-year-old Marshal Emilio Debono to command the "South Army group." Military circles interpreted the designation as meaning his command would include the one Italian army which has been stationed in the South and the two which are in Libya.

Debono's appointment recalled the Ethiopian campaign, when the bearded little Fascist "avenged" the Italians massacred at Adowa in 1896 by taking that Ethiopian town. Some Fascists have said one of Italy's first moves if it enters the present war would be to strike at Egypt and the Suez Canal from Libya.

New Arms Grant.

In the midst of reports from abroad that Italian merchant ships in foreign waters had been ordered to neutral ports and that scheduled sailings had been canceled, a well-informed source said the Italian liner Rex would not sail for New York June 12, although the line still was taking reservations.

The air force was given a new grant of $380,000,000 for expansion in the next three years, and the navy got $80,000,000 for sea and shore armament.

Axis' Single Concern Is Defeat of Allies, Berlin Says.

BERLIN, June 8 (AP).—Authorized German sources said today the German-Italian policy in the European war is governed by a single thought — "how can England and France be struck in the most catastrophic manner?"

These sources added that Germany and Italy are working in close co-operation. They said neither country places its own interest in the foreground, but "both have only one desire, namely, to deal an effective blow at England and France."

Italian Liner at Sea Ordered Back to Brazil.

BUENOS AIRES, June 8 (AP).—The Italian liner Conte Grande, en route to Italy from Argentina, has been ordered back to Santos from which it sailed last night, a representative of the line disclosed today.

BOMBINGS AT NANCY, FRANCE

NANCY, France, June 8 (AP).—Many places in this area have been bombed recently, but only a few persons have been wounded and no important damage has been reported.

KINNEY, BROGAN UNOPPOSED FOR STATE SENATE

Their Colleague Doran, However, Has Contest—Other Candidates for Legislature.

Two veteran Democratic State Senators from St. Louis—Mike Kinney and Joe Brogan—are unopposed for renomination in the Aug. 6 primary, while their Democratic colleague, William J. Doran, has two last-minute opponents.

There is a Democratic contest for the two-year unexpired term of the late Senator Percy Pepoon, Thirtieth District. The Republicans have two contests for senatorial places, one unopposed candidate and one vacancy on the ticket, in Brogan's district, which will be filled after the primary by the party committee. Time for filing candidates expired last night.

Kinney represents the downtown Thirty-first District, Brogan the Thirty-third, on the near-North Side, and Doran the southern Twenty-ninth. Pepoon's district was the lower near-South Side. Two other State Senators from St. Louis will hold office until 1942.

Kinney and Brogan are members of the triumvirate which long has exercised a strong controlling hand in the Senate. Their colleague, Michael E. Casey of Kansas City, is undergoing the unaccustomed experience of having opposition in the primary, with three opposing candidates.

Drops Out as Committeeman.

A surprise as filing time expired was the retirement of Kinney as Fifth Ward Democratic committeeman, a post he has held for many years, but which he has handled through a proxy much of the time. One of his followers, Justice of the Peace Richard J. Fitzgibbon, is the unopposed candidate to succeed him there. Brogan is unopposed for re-election as Third Ward Democratic committeeman.

Doran's opponents for the senatorial nomination are James P. Shannon, 5008 Lansdowne, and Elmer A. Brohammer, 1920A Arsenal. Republican candidates in the Twenty-ninth District are: George W. Williams, 4973 Quincy; Francis M. O'Brien, 6308 Idaho, and Ernest H. Sides, 3900 Hartford.

Democratic candidates in the Thirteenth District are Anthony M. Webbe, 948 Hickory, Chief Deputy Sheriff, and J. Jules Brinkman, 1318 Shenandoah, who is retiring as a State Representative.

Republican candidates in the Thirty-first District are Frank R. Slay, 714 Pine, and John Ledbetter. Former Senator William F. Depelheuer, 1921 Allen, is the unopposed Republican candidate in the Thirtieth.

Three of the 19 State Representatives from St. Louis, which sent a solidly Democratic delegation to the House, as well as the Senate, in 1938, are retiring, having failed to file for renomination. Besides, Brinkman, they are Harold V. Healy, Third District, and Don S. Gregson, Fifth.

There are contests among Democrats running for State Representatives in all districts, notably the First, with 15 candidates for four places, and the Fifth, with 13 for four, but in the Third there are only five men seeking the four places. The Republicans have no contests in the Second and Fourth.

Four nominees will be chosen in each district, except the Second, which has three.

Democratic Candidates.

SIGNS BOUCKAERT KILLING STORY AS WIDOW WATCHES

Prisoner, Returned From California, Says Grocer Was Slashed When He Resisted Holdup.

E. J. McClain, a factory worker, has confessed the killing of Emil Bouckaert, grocery and meat market owner, in an attempted holdup March 28, police announced today. They said he made a signed statement yesterday in the presence of Mrs. Bouckaert. A warrant charging first-degree murder has been issued.

McClain, 28 years old, described by a close friend as "a whittling fool," who always had a knife in his hand, admitted that he slashed Bouckaert from ear to ear in a dark alley which runs from Broadway to Fourth street in the 2800 block. McClain said: "I swiped at him after he hit me in the mouth when I told him it was a stickup."

After the killing, McClain was traced from the home of relatives in Martin, Tenn., to a sister's home in Lakeport, Cal., where he was arrested. Police had learned the names of his companions on the night of the killing from an anonymous caller and from the companions they obtained McClain's name.

The Bouckaerts were accosted by McClain shortly after they left a tavern near their home, 2821 South Third street. McClain lives in the 2300 block of South Tenth street.

BILL PROPOSES 10 PCT. PAY CUT FOR SOME CITY WORKERS

Those Hired After Enactment at $85 a Month or More Would Be Affected.

The standardization bill for 1940-41 fixing the salaries of city employes, which was introduced in the Board of Aldermen yesterday, contains a provision for a 10 per cent one-year wage cut for all employes making $85 a month or more hired after enactment of the measure. The bill would affect about 300 persons and save about $50,000, it was estimated by Deputy Comptroller Charles L. Cunningham.

A bill providing for an appropriation of $200,000 from general revenue to pay the city's share of WPA projects through the summer was introduced in the Board by Alderman Joseph B. Schweppe, chairman of the Relief Committee.

Alderman Hubert A. Hoeflinger, chairman of the Public Safety Committee, introduced the bill, approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which would appropriate $300,000 from the general revenue to set up a revolving fund for the purchase of smokeless fuel to be sold to the public next winter in the event coal dealers do not meet the demand.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

On Editing Dorothy Thompson.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial about Miss Dorothy Thompson shows that you are not letting "half baked" ideas get the best of you.

You are right when you say some of her articles are admirable. She has introduced some excellent ideas during the past few months, but when she suggested the third term, I began to feel that she would start us on the wrong road if we followed her advice.

So I thank you for not publishing her article advising Congress that we "should go to war, and go now." You say, "Miss Thompson is just as much in need of editing and careful scrutiny as are the dispatches from Berlin." You never published a greater truth.

A. T. LAWSON.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I READ your editorial Thursday on Miss Thompson. I commend you on your action. Miss Thompson's antagonism and vitriolic utterances, which have increased in severity as time passed, began shortly after the German Government treated her in a way she disliked.

We need calmness and thoughtfulness today, not fanaticism as displayed by Dorothy Thompson. I hope that you again and again keep that courage by which you use the shears on her articles.

None of us likes to see nations overrun. Dorothy Thompson's position is that the world is run by one nation. Under her theory, she would send us all to defeat Russia, Italy, Germany, Japan and then probably the Allies, too, if we could not coax them into our way of doing things.

PAUL D. BOONE.

For McReynolds, Against McDaniel.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Post-Dispatch can perform a real public service by bringing into the open the true facts regarding the efforts of Barney Dickmann and his gang to elect Larry McDaniel Governor.

The unfortunate part of the mess is that most St. Louisans have a genuine affection for Larry and would elect him to the job of "Toastmaster General" by unanimous vote. But for Governor, no, not with Barney calling the shots.

Why not give some new recognition to Senator Allen McReynolds for his honest and uncontrolled record in the Senate? I have heard several veterans in State politics say that there never has been a candidate for the governorship of Missouri with the background and experience in State politics of Allen McReynolds.

Why not remind the public that this man refused to jump through Pendergast's hoop when to say No to Tom was political suicide?

INDEPENDENT VOTER.

To Improve Our State Legislators.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is indeed gratifying to thousands of St. Louisans to learn that the cause for which the Post-Dispatch has fought so fearlessly has at last borne fruit. At last there is a conscious effort on the part of the interested parties to put administration of the law on a higher plane.

This effort has manifested itself in the selection of a group of competent lawyers whom the city committees are pledged to support.

Congratulations, Post-Dispatch!

However, why stop now? Aren't the legislators who make the laws which the Judges are sworn to enforce as important to the voters as the Judges themselves? Of what avail are the most competent Judges if the laws and the legislators are the most reprehensible?

I believe the Post-Dispatch can round out and complete this crusade for a more laudable administration of justice by scrutinizing and publishing the records of the candidates for the Missouri Legislature.

Moreover, the Post-Dispatch might offer the citizens of St. Louis what it considers to be a competent group of candidates for the Legislature.

I feel confident that, in view of the difficulty of Mr. and Mrs. Voter to learn the facts about those running for the Legislature, the citizens of St. Louis would welcome such a public service.

ALFRED I. HARRIS,
Candidate for the Legislature,
Fifth District.

How Come, Poplar Bluff?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN a booklet recently received from the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce, Poplar Bluff is described as the Athens of Southeast Missouri.

Having visited this enterprising little city several times, I can vouch for much of the glowing description given in this booklet, though some things have been omitted which I think might have aptly added to the lure of this place.

Yet from the home town of the incomparable Thad Snow, Charleston, comes a fair, blue-eyed girl who was crowned queen of the recent Ozarks Jubilee held at Poplar Bluff. How is the anomaly to be explained?

Is Charleston to receive all the honors, despite the wealth and beauty of Poplar Bluff's natural and material resources?

Let the sages of Poplar Bluff explain this, or should it be wisely left to the agreeable Mr. Snow, who must be familiar with every feature of Charleston's beauty, growth and culture?

ARTHUR JOBSON.

UNWISE AND UNREALISTIC.

President Roosevelt has come out in favor of "universal compulsory military training." He has done this through no formal executive statement, but by indorsing an editorial in the New York Times.

The Times says that it "has never before believed in the wisdom of such a policy in time of peace," but now thinks "the time has come when, in the interest of self-protection," such a national system is required.

It is altogether understandable that such a proposal should be put forward, now that publicists like Dorothy Thompson and public personages such as former Ambassador James W. Gerard are urging the United States to declare war on Germany. But the country patently supports no such hysterical demands, and the proposal for turning the nation into an armed camp deserves the same scrutiny as those demands have received.

No one in his senses will oppose building up the national defenses. It is obvious that our army and navy need modernization and that we have only begun to develop the air force which world conditions require. Unprecedented peacetime appropriation bills are going through Congress with virtually unanimous public support.

But the fact that the American people do not begrudge footing an immediate defense bill of around five billions does not give Congress or the executive leave to spend it, or any part of it, unwisely. As Maj. Eliot wrote in the Post-Dispatch yesterday:

> Let us make sure that for each dollar spent, we get a dollar's worth of national security. Let us spend a little of this money in planning how to spend the rest. This will pay us rich dividends—in economy, and in safety, and as an investment in the future of America.

Universal compulsory military training does not fit into our needs—certainly not at this time. On the contrary, it would be a positive distraction from our main requirements in national defense—airplanes, pilots, an expanded navy and naval personnel, modernization of naval bases, increase in mechanical equipment for the army.

But universal compulsory military training would be more than a distraction. It would take funds which had far better be used in the improvements just enumerated. A program of military training for all American youths of a certain age would be a terrifically expensive proposition. It would be all the more expensive because military experts, reading the lessons of the war in Europe, look on masses of troops as more or less useless, if not a distinct liability, when pitted against mobile iron and steel and against death that rains from the skies.

There is no use thinking of warfare today in terms of the old wars of foot soldiers. The Nazis swept to the English Channel in modern tanks, trucks and armored motorcycles. Before such force, the poorly equipped British could only retreat as best they could under fire to the burning ports. Their very numbers handicapped the evacuation.

In his notable book, "The Ramparts We Watch," Maj. Eliot says that if the United States is called on to defend itself, our main effort will be directed toward maintaining the control of maritime communications by means of a navy—including, of course, a naval air force. He concludes that we will not be required to send millions of men overseas or "to enlist millions of men to defend our soil." It simply will not be that kind of defense.

On at least two other major scores may universal compulsory military training in peacetime be opposed. It would operate as a propaganda device for creating a popular feeling that American involvement in the war is inevitable. It would fly in the face of the American tradition of freedom of youth from regimentation into military service. Surely we have not forgotten that literally hundreds of thousands of Europeans have come to our shores in past years to escape impressment under arms.

There doubtless will be sentiment in Congress in favor of the proposal. This will reflect to a degree the eagerness of Congressmen to maintain in their districts obsolete military posts which go back to the Indian wars of the frontier. Universal military training would probably establish these useless posts beyond all chance of removal.

Let us increase our officer personnel, let us expand the reserves and let us make wider use of the Citizens' Military Training Corps and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps to that end. But let us not adopt a proposal so expensive, so confused and so unnecessary as universal military training.

PATRIOTISM AND LABOR RACKETEERS.

The movie operators' union, the incomparable IATSE, went on a grand patriotic splurge at Thursday's session of its national convention at Louisville. The delegates voted unanimously to expel all Communists from their ranks. They went gravely on record as offering the Government all the union's resources for national defense. And they solemnly counseled the administration to "keep us clear of any war involvements."

All this is fine, but isn't the IATSE going rather far afield to hunt for enemies of the Republic and menaces to the national security while its own stupendous job of house cleaning remains undone? The union continues to harbor such characters as the notorious John Nick of St. Louis and the ex-white-slaver, Willie Bioff, its West coast representative. Why worry about the administration's conduct of its duties while the union does nothing to put down labor racketeering, which is in itself a sizable threat to democracy from within?

It was Dr. Samuel Johnson who called patriotism "the last refuge of a scoundrel." If the racketeers are protected under cover of a "save-the-country" campaign, then the crotchety old doctor's axiom stands verified again.

WHAT IS ITALY WAITING FOR?

Why is Italy delaying before it plunges into the European war? The world has been wondering about that for weeks, as the Rome Government winds up for a terrific blow, carefully calls attention to its bellicose intentions, and then each time fails to follow through. Each day it is announced that tension is growing, that Italy is closer to war, and the performance continues to be repeated until it has taken on all the appearance of a long-drawn bluff or a carefully staged drama in the war of nerves.

Now, however, informed Berlin sources have stated the conditions Italy is awaiting before plunging in: (1) destruction of the French air force, (2) distraction of French attention by a gigantic operation such as a siege of Paris. Berlin states further that Italy cannot undertake to fight "so long as France is in position to make quick retaliation."

In other words, Italy wants its ghoul's share of the spoils, but is not going to reach for them until the corpse is about to cease palpitating. Italy dares not stab France in the back until Germany has her handcuffed, tied to the stake and is ready to apply the torch. Italy, brave conqueror of unarmed Ethiopia and helpless Albania, trembles to face a first-class antagonist until the odds are at least 100 to 1.

Such, in effect, are the conditions as set forth in the capital of Italy's axis partner. It is easy to understand the note of contempt that cannot be concealed in the Berlin statement.

TOWARD A TEACHERS' PENSION PLAN.

Steps at last are being taken toward solution of a problem that has handicapped the St. Louis public school system for years: what to do about superannuated teachers. The Teachers' Joint Committee on Retirement has worked out a plan providing for compulsory retirement at 70 and voluntary retirement at 62, after completion of 35 years' service, with pensions to be paid by joint contributions of teaching employes and the board. Details are still tentative, but it is reassuring that after so long a time, the stage of definite planning has finally been reached.

The Strayer survey, made public more than a year ago, found St. Louis had a "rather mature" teaching personnel. White teachers, its figures showed, had served an average of 20 years in the grade schools and 23 years in high school. Sharp warning was added that, for want of a retirement plan, teachers > stay on indefinitely and are apparently protected in their position by tenure until complete disability or death forces their separation from the classroom. This condition calls for immediate action, if the interests of children are to be adequately served.

Two concrete advantages would result from adoption of a retirement plan. First, the caliber of teaching would improve by relieving from duty the older instructors, who are less capable as a group than younger ones, though brilliant exceptions exist. The second gain would be in economy, since younger teachers would enter the system at lower salary scales than those retired.

Legislative action would be required to place a retirement plan in effect. There is ample time to work out an actuarially sound plan before the next session of the Legislature meets next January. It is a hopeful sign that the spadework is now under way, to make possible this long-needed reform.

THE BATTLE OF FRANCE.

They are not calling it the Battle of the Somme—this tremendous new engagement which rages along the historic river after only a brief respite from the devastating struggle in Flanders. Paris communiques call it instead the Battle of France, for high command, straining poilu and intent citizen alike realize that the nation's fate depends on stopping the fresh Nazi drive. Neutral military experts confirm the verdict; as Fletcher Pratt writes: "It is not too much to say that they (the French) are required to win this battle or be knocked out of the war."

The odds in the great battle are against France. Many of its first-line troops and much of its mechanized equipment were lost in the Flanders pocket. Little help, save in the air, can come from their British ally, similarly stripped in the fatal attempt to rescue Belgium. Now it must be men against crunching tanks, indomitable courage against the blasting power of Nazi bombers.

More than once the fortitude of France has met an eleventh-hour test, but never so formidable an attack as this. There are some hopeful signs—new methods of stopping tanks, the defenders' high morale, the vagueness of Berlin's brief communiques. France has new heroes today, men who offer their bodies and their courage to halt the onward march of the world's most deadly war machine.

A STUPID PIECE OF CENSORSHIP.

Movie censorship has risen to a new height of folly in Chicago, where the Police Censor Board has banned the Federal Government's documentary film, "The Fight for Life." This film, which deals with child and maternal welfare, was made by the brilliant young producer, Pare Lorentz, from the book of the same title by Paul de Kruif.

Needless to say, it is a serious, carefully thought-out piece of work, utterly lacking in sensationalism, dependent for its drama entirely on the tragic fact of widespread infant and maternal mortality. It has not been exhibited in St. Louis yet, but St. Louisans who saw Mr. Lorentz's remarkably effective film on the dust bowl and wind erosion, "The Plow That Broke the Plains," or "The River," his second production for the Government, will take for granted its sincerity, integrity and good taste.

"The Fight for Life" was exhibited in a Broadway theater in New York as long ago as last February. Its impact was admitted, but it was received as a constructive attempt to reach large numbers of people with a dramatic presentation of the struggle to save the lives of women and babies in a complex society in which there are slums and desperate poverty.

To say that "The Fight for Life" is unfit for public consumption is to utter nonsense. If it is proper for the human race to carry on, it is proper for it to know all it can know to reduce the travail and tragedy of maternal and infant deaths. The Chicago Police Department may or may not be all right at capturing criminals. As a custodian of social thought and public health education, it is a complete failure.

When the other Republican contestants for the nomination now speak of "that man," they don't mean F. D. R. "That man" is Wendell Willkie.

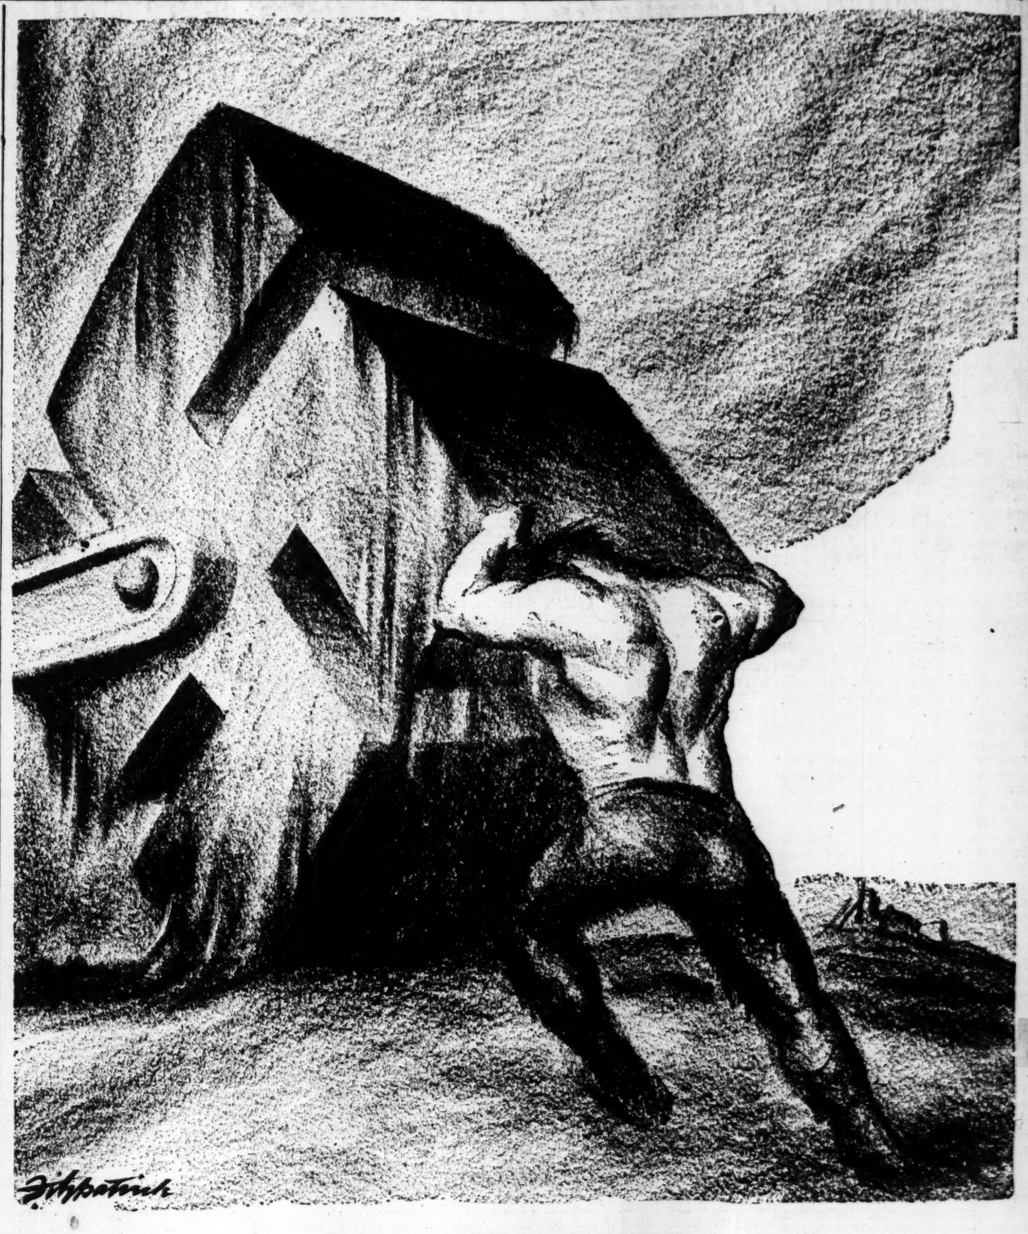
LET THE F B I HUNT THE SPIES.

Americans who started organizing "parashooter" squadrons a few weeks ago seem convinced by now, after a little sober reflection, that they were engaged in a rather silly business. Not so, however, the sponsors of private spy hunts. Some of them are still engaged in trying to pin incriminating actions on neighbors with foreign accents, but that is equally senseless, according to a representative of the FBI in the nearby Illinois area.

Joseph E. Thornton, special agent, points out that the FBI objects to these amateur investigations for two reasons: "Many times they do untold damage to innocent people, and they obstruct legitimate inquiries of our trained agents." If anyone has what seems to be a clew to sabotage or espionage, the most useful and most patriotic thing to do is to report it to the FBI at once. Each case is thoroughly investigated, in far greater detail than a private citizen could possibly accomplish. Vigilante activities can rarely do more than breed hysteria and work hardship on unoffending persons.

America has in the FBI a highly skilled organization for handling spies and saboteurs. It can safely be intrusted with the task which, in 99 cases out of 100, would be bungled by the amateur Sherlocks.

Missouri has four third-term aspirants—Lieutenant-Governor Harris, Secretary of State Brown, State Auditor Smith and Attorney-General McKittrick. There is something highly enticing about that public trough.



MAN AGAINST THE MACHINE.

What Missouri Editors Are Saying

TIME FOR COOL THINKING.

Mrs. Roy Kanatzer in the Centralia Fireside Guard.

I WISH it were possible to take a long view of what is happening today in Europe. I mean the ability to see both forward and backward, for then we should understand the real meaning of recent world-shaking events, see them in their true perspective, and realize that even the upsetting of cherished traditions and institutions does not necessarily signify the end of everything.

From expressions by ordinary men and women, we see a wide diversity of opinion on what is best for America. But one thread of similarity traces a continuous pattern through all the comment: America should be prepared.

It took catastrophe to jolt Great Britain from the comatose state into which she had been lulled by Chamberlain. It took stinging defeat to convince the conservative British people that a change in leadership was not only necessary but imperative.

We can't settle Europe's age-old difficulties. Much as it shocks and outrages our feelings to see helpless minorities crushed and inoffensive neutral nations overrun, we cannot undertake the impossible task of establishing peace and justice among nations solely interested in imperialism.

A SATISFACTORY SWAP.

From the Benton County Guide.

WHEN swappin' men get together, sooner or later they are going to trade something, if it's only their wives' last winter coats.

Last Saturday, Night Watchman Gene Greer and Rural Carrier Jim Atkins met on the street and both were in a bargaining frame of mind. Well, they talked about this and that and then the swap was made. Atkins traded a four-year-old milk goat for Greer's 17-jewel gold watch.

A week has almost elapsed and both men are pleased with the trade. The goat gives milk and the watch keeps good time. Which is something unusual in swappin'.

SQUARING THINGS.

From the Charleston Democrat.

IN last week's issue of the Democrat, on the editorial page, appeared an editorial captioned "A Politician Who Guessed Wrong." This expression of opinion in regard to Senator Clark versus Stark was written by a writer on the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and not by the editor of the Charleston Democrat.

We are always eager and willing to give credit where credit is due, whether it be in writing or in any other endeavor, and we are glad to announce to our readers that this fine piece of writing was done by the Post-Dispatch. The usual instructions were given to our linotype operator, who inadvertently failed to give the Post-Dispatch credit, and the omission of the credit line was subsequently missed by the editor.

We do not wish to plagiarize, and therefore extend our apologies to our readers and the Post-Dispatch.

UNMASKING A BASE IMPOSTOR.

From the Bloomfield Vindicator.

NOW that ripe, red strawberries have arrived, we rise to protest the monstrous concoction that is being masqueraded as strawberry shortcake. The impostor consists of a slice of cake surmounted by a few berries and topped off with a dab of cream.

Anybody knows that real strawberry shortcake is a different dish. It consists of a glorified combination of pastry and berries, covered with rich whipped cream.

We suspect that one of the troubles that beset the world, that crop of "antis" who are against everything, is due to the probability that they are being fed the imitation strawberry shortcake. Once they enjoy the genuine article, they will give off a gently purr, find the world worth living in.

MAJ. AL WILLIAMS' ADVICE.

From the Bethany Republican Clipper.

IT is disputed nowhere that the United States should, and at once, proceed to the development of its own defenses through building large numbers of airplanes and training air and ground crews. Maj. Al Williams, who qualifies as an expert, has called for a saneness in the proceeding.

Maj. Williams, former navy speed flyer, aeronautical surveyor of Europe in 1938 and the only American who has flown the German Messerschmidt, calls for the air force to be made a separate one, with American air power "no longer in the jealous hands of the army and the navy and the politicians." He points, in that respect, to the disastrous experiences of England.

Maj. Williams has pointed out that with all air power, the Germans could not attack and subdue England from air bases only 300 to 500 miles distant. Instead, they seized air bases on the coasts of Holland, Belgium and France, just 20 to 100 miles from the coast of England.

So here we have an expert who tells us that oceans still are highly valuable in national defense.

MENACE TO MISSOURI WILDLIFE.

From the Mexico Evening Ledger.

WE trust the move to return the fish and game of the State to the hands of the politicians will fail. The new arrangement for wildlife conservation may not meet with the full approval of everyone, but the commission is trying to move along the right line. It may make mistakes, but these will be rectified when they are known.

Once the game gets back into the hands of the politicians, you just aas well kiss it good-by. There won't be any more game within a few years.

WHAT'S THE RUSH?

From the Odessa Leader.

ANOTHER couple was asking for a divorce this week because their trial marriage just wouldn't work. In their petition, they said they had tried it out for 60 years and simply couldn't make it work. If it won't work after 60 years, it probably won't ever. But there is no use in their being precipitate about the matter.

A GRATIFYING RESPONSE.

From the Richmond Conservator.

THE response of public sentiment to the appeal of the President for providing adequate means for national defense was most gratifying. There has been very little if any political maneuvering injected into the matter, which again proves that our people are patriots before partisans.

There is a unanimity of feeling that no power can stand in the way of a mighty people taking the course of action they believe best for the national welfare.

PEAN TO GREENS.

The Stroller, in the Neosho Miner and Mechanic.

SOME way or somehow, all those fresh, nice garden vegetables and strawberries, all home-grown, don't seem to hit the spot in my stomach that they used to 'way back yonder. I think it is because nowadays we have green onions, radishes, lettuce, new potatoes, peas, strawberries and so on in the market almost 12 months in the year.

There is one thing, however, and that is the old-fashioned greens, with plenty of polk, lamb's-quarter and dock, that still tickles my palate, and I kinda hope they won't start to shipping in this commodity.

Are the Germans Guilty?

Books in the News

THOMAS MANN, distinguished recipient of the Nobel Prize in literature, asks the world not to condemn the German people for the barbarities which the Nazi regime is imposing on Europe.

In "This War" (Alfred A. Knopf, New York), the exiled, dispossessed former German, who is now well on the way to American citizenship, says that the people whom Hitler rules today are "decent folk," lovers of "honesty and straightforwardness." Their hearts could not have beat higher at the thought of Gestapo torture cellars, concentration camps and the "unfolding terror" of total war.

* * *

The creator of the great Joseph novels explains but he does not apologize. His explanation is that the Germans, in an "unconscious desperation," accepted the pattern of Nazi-ism seven years ago. Having accepted it, they are bound "to fall deeper and deeper into guilt," to "step from misdeed to misdeed." Munich, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Denmark, Norway, the Low Countries—these are milestones of the tragic course.

Far from apologizing, he places chief responsibility for the peace and happiness of Europe, and perhaps the world, on these very people who have accepted Hitler's terrorism as their way of life. It is up to them, writes Mann, to rise up and throw off the yoke that is sinking them in degradation and brutality.

For "if the German people cannot muster the strength to revolt, if they prefer to look on and wait, to see whether success may not justify their rulers, guilt and disaster will be heaped upon their heads." Then "they will fling away the peace that could have been their peace, and theirs especially, a peace of German happiness and German greatness."

* * *

This great German knows that his people and all of the peoples of Europe yearn for peace. Yet their lot is now a life-and-death struggle, with all its costs—"loss of the amenities of life, deprivations of the simplest material values, which an unscrupulous war economy, battening on the national substance, inflicts." Such is the price of allowing a "police terrorism," an alien Germany to dissolve the cultural bulwarks of the Germany of music and literature and great drama and philosophy.

It is a heartsick expatriate of Germany who celebrates his sixty-fifth birthday this week in the quiet refuge of tree-shaded Princeton. But it is a still strong believer in democracy, whose experience and eloquence are producing notable tracts for our times in his brief popular political essays, now three in number.

Two Volumes on Labor Relations.

FOR those who want a detailed knowledge of the Wagner Act and its operations, there is now available "The National Labor Policy," by Joseph Rosenfarb, a Labor Board attorney (Harper & Brothers, New York). Obviously, this is to some extent ex parte NLRB, yet it is the most exhaustive and satisfactory book on the subject that has yet appeared.

Another book of interest to those with a labor shelf is "As Steel Goes" (Yale University Press, New Haven, Conn.), by Prof. Robert R. R. Brooks, author of "When Labor Organizes" and "Unions of Their Own Choosing." It is an excellent study of collective bargaining in the country's major industry, following the 1937 pact between the United States Steel Corporation and the CIO.

FORD TO FIND OUT WHAT HE CAN DO AS PLANE BUILDER

His Engineers to Inspect Sample Craft and Decide if He Can Make 1000 Ships a Day.

SPLIT IN CONGRESS ON FORCED TRAINING

Unofficial Debate Starts on Roosevelt's Praise for Newspaper Editorial Urging Such Drill.

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP). — The army put one of its fastest pursuit planes at Henry Ford's disposal today to let him determine whether his mass production genius can get aerial fighters rolling off assembly lines at the rate of 1000 a day.

The sudden completion of arrangements to have the pursuit ship delivered to Ford engineers in Detroit Monday momentarily distracted defense program attention from the sharp cleavage of congressional opinion on President Roosevelt's applause for a newspaper editorial urging compulsory military training.

The unofficial debate on compulsory training, however, was off to a heated start, and there were indications of additional legislative dissension over administration plans which would, in effect, make large amount of World War equipment available for Allied purchase by turning it back to the manufacturers.

Estimate as to Rifles.

Roosevelt said at his press conference yesterday that the arms and munitions stores were deteriorating but that they still had an immediate value. Although he did not specify the size of the stores, unofficial military estimates were that enough rifles to supply an army of almost 2,000,000 might be turned in.

The announcement that a pursuit plane would be sent to Detroit was made by the War Department last night. Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson said that Ford had telegraphed a request to see the ship "as soon as possible."

Ford, pioneer in automotive mass production, asserted two weeks ago that, given certain conditions, his plants in six months' time could turn out 1000 standard-type planes daily. The statement immediately aroused interest both here and in London, and there was evidence that Britain, anxious to bolster its air force, intended to explore the possibility.

Edsel Ford's Visit.

A day or two after his father spoke, Edsel Ford came to Washington to confer with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, co-ordinator of domestic and Allied purchases of military aircraft.

At that time, Morgenthau said, they discussed the possibility of putting Ford plants into mass production on engines. No mention was made of complete planes.

In the course of the conference, Morgenthau disclosed, Ford said that "if he can find the engine or if we can find one for him that he can produce on a mass production basis, he'd be very glad to do it for patriotic reasons.

"He is putting his engineering staff to work on this problem," Morgenthau added. This caused speculation today as to whether Ford experts have been busy on the subject ever since.

Elder Ford's Stipulation.

The elder Ford, in asserting that he could build 1000 planes every 24 hours, stipulated these conditions:

That his company be left to its own supervision; that there be no "meddling by Government agencies," and that he have the counsel of such aviation authorities as Charles A. Lindbergh and Edward Rickenbacker.

During the World War Ford turned his great industrial plants to the mass production of munitions, whippet tanks, ambulances and submarine chasers. Between 1925 and 1929 he manufactured a number of tri-motor transport planes, and was then credited with having plans in mind for the mass production of "flivver" aircraft.

Although the War Department did not describe the pursuit ship being sent to Detroit, informed officials intimated that it was a high-speed, single-motor fighter which already has proved itself.

On Compulsory Training.

The question of compulsory military training was injected into the complicated defense picture yesterday at the President's press conference, when Roosevelt was asked to comment on a New York Times editorial.

He replied that he had read only the first paragraph and liked it very much. The paragraph called for immediate adoption of a national system of compulsory military training.

Chairman Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, commenting on the editorial, said: "We should not incite hysteria by advocating at this time compulsory military service."

Exclaimed Senator Norris (Ind.), Nebraska: "I'm not for it, I never have been, and I don't believe we ought to have it."

Senator Thomas (Dem.), Utah, voiced approval, and Senator Connally (Dem.), Texas, said some such policy eventually might be necessary if threatening world conditions continued.

There was comparable disagreement over Roosevelt's plans to ask Congress for specific authority to turn World War stocks of guns back to manufacturers. Existing laws make this permissible with planes and ammunition.

Senator Clark (Dem.), Idaho, said that the indirect releasing of weapons to a belligerent "by an artificial and duplicitous device" had the effect of entering the country into war "on the side of that belligerent." He disclosed efforts were underway to form a Senate bloc to fight it.

In the opposing camp, Speaker Bankhead called the proposal "a mighty good program," and Chairman Sheppard (Dem.), Texas, of the Senate Military Committee predicted that the legislation Roosevelt desired would receive committee approval Monday.

Disposal of Gun Funds.

Under existing law, funds from the sale of guns would have to be placed in the Treasury's general fund, subject only to congressional appropriations. What the President proposes is to have the proceeds, perhaps running to $30,000,000, remain on the books of the manufacturers to be applied later to Government purchases of new material.

Reported available for sale are 500 75-millimeter field guns, 600,000 Lee Enfield rifles, 70,000 machine guns, 100 six-inch guns, 250 eight-inch Howitzers, 25 siege guns and 200 Stokes mortars, with large quantities of ammunition.

One member of the House Military Affairs Committee has estimated that 350,000 of the new Garand semi-automatic rifles being manufactured for the United States would equip an army of 1,000,000 men. On that basis, the 600,000 Lee Enfields might supply an army of nearly 2,000,000.

Responsible officials indicated, also, that the administration intended releasing more than 500 planes for re-sale by manufacturers to the Allies—for which trade-in authority already exists. Fifty Navy dive bombers have been assembled in Buffalo for reconditioning by the manufacturer, and deliveries to Canada will start this week-end.

Roosevelt stated yesterday that only old equipment would be released, but he continued pointedly to say that airplanes age rapidly.

Other Defense Steps.

While indirectly opening its war warehouses to the Allies, the Government looked to the United States' own defenses:

Army arsenals, it was disclosed, have been ordered to begin 24-hour operations wherever practicable.

Amidst reports of increasing pro-Nazi activity in Latin America, the Navy announced that the cruiser Wichita would follow the cruiser Quincy to Rio de Janeiro on a "friendly visit."

After consultation with counter espionage agencies, the Federal Communications Commission barred virtually all amateur portable radio stations, having previously prohibited amateur wireless communication with foreign countries.

House Vote on Defense Tax Bill Expected by Next Wednesday

Full Committee Scheduled to Approve Billion Dollar Measure Today—Similarly Swift Action to Be Sought in Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP).—An election-year tax bill to tap the rich, the poor and the man in between for another billion a year to pay off defense loans moved with emergency speed today toward congressional approval.

The measure, written by a House Ways and Means Subcommittee yesterday, was expected to be approved by the full committee today and to pass the House by next Wednesday.

Administration leaders want to push the bill through the Senate Finance Committee by next week end and dispatch it to President Roosevelt a few days later.

The measure, broadening the tax base, raising the levies on corporations and middle-bracket individuals and imposing a flat 10 per cent supertax on all, is designed to pay off $4,000,000,000 of special defense bonds over the next five years.

Roosevelt already has asked Congress for about $4,600,000,000 in defense outlays, for which bonds would be issued. The bill would raise the debt limit from $45,000,000,000 to $49,000,000,000 to make possible the bond issue.

Tax receipts from the new bill would be placed in a special fund to be used only to liquidate the defense debt.

A provision lowering present income tax exemptions from $2500 to $2000 for married persons and from $1000 to $800 for single persons would become permanent, however, as would higher surtaxes on incomes between $6000 and $100,000.

Many who escape the direct income levies will help pay the defense bill through a 10 per cent increase in virtually all excise levies on manufactured articles. This rise is applicable only through 1945.

The lower exemptions will require about 2,050,000 additional individuals to make a direct tax contribution.

The higher surtaxes would start in the $6000-to-$8000 bracket, with an increase from 5 to 6 per cent. The greatest increase would be from 27 to 40 per cent in the brackets between $44,000 and $50,000.

How Proposed Tax Bill Works

WASHINGTON, June 8.

HERE is how the administration's new $1,006,000,0000 defense tax bill would hit various taxpayers' pocketbooks:

A married man with a $3000 net taxable income and no dependents, who now pays a tax of $8, would pay $30.80. A single man with the same income would pay $83.60, instead of $68.

In other representative income brackets, the tax on married men would be as follows:

$5,000	$80	$110.00

DR. PHELPS SAYS NEWSPAPER READING IS AID TO LONG LIFE

Noted Yale Professor Emeritus Asserts "Things Beyond Ourselves" Are Stressed.

PHILADELPHIA, June 8 (AP).—Regular reading of newspapers was recommended yesterday by Dr. William Lyon Phelps as an aid toward longer life.

"The three cents invested in a newspaper is one of the greatest aids to vitality we have," Yale's famous emeritus professor of English said at the Jefferson Medical College commencement.

"The paper provides us with interests that will take us out of ourselves. The more we are interested in things beyond ourselves, the better we can combat despondency and trouble and the longer we live."

MEDALS TO BRITONS LOST IN AT-ALL-COST BOMBING OF BRIDGE

Victoria Cross Awarded Pair Who Led Raiders on Canal Span.

LONDON, June 8 (AP). — The Victoria Cross was awarded today to two Royal Air Force flyers, now missing, who led an attack on an Albert Canal bridge over which the Germans streamed into Belgium May 29.

They were Pilot De Garland and Observer Thomas Gray. They manned the leading plane in a formation of five which destroyed the bridge. All other bridges had been blown up, and the order was given to destroy this one at all costs. Only one of the five planes returned.

Oliver Russell Donaldson, 28 years old of Revelstoke, British Columbia, received the Dintinguished Flying Cross for gallantry against the enemy, specifically for flying actions near the French-Belgian frontier in May.

Flag Week Observance.

GUIDE TO THE NEW MOVIES

By Colvin McPherson

THE BISCUIT EATER—If you like dogs, if you like children, if you like the unusual, this is it. A Jack Benny radio transcription, with pictures, called "Buck Benny Rides Again," adds up a doubly entertaining bill at the FOX.

20 MULE TEAM—Into Death Valley with Wallace Beery and his Missouri nightingales. Fair sort of yarn and the scenery's fascinating. "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case" is more of Lew Ayres' bootleg medicine. "The Flag Speaks," a short subject, makes up the money's worth, at LOEW'S.

OPENED BY MISTAKE—And what kind of a movie title is that? It refers to a trunk murder, not the show itself. "Hot Steel" really works up a sweat in the steel mills, with Richard Arlen and Andy Devine doing their best as he-men. At the ST. LOUIS.

MY FAVORITE WIFE—Cary Grant and Irene Dunne are both favorites in this favorite kind of comedy from Leo McCarey's workshop. "The Saint Takes Over," the second half of the double bill, for a second week at the AMBASSADOR.

LILLIAN RUSSELL—Alice Faye as the queen of diamonds. And about Dorothy Lamour in "Typhoon"—that sarong, you're wrong. It's a lava-lava. Third week in town for these, at the MISSOURI.

Allies Beginning Long Uphill Fight at the Best, Dr. Usher Says

France and Britain Indirectly Admit Defeat Is Possible Unless U. S. Comes to Their Assistance.

Although American public opinion still seems to feel that the Allies will not lose the war, Prime Minister Churchill's frank speech to the House of Commons Tuesday throws a light on the fight for Paris that shows the extreme seriousness of the situation, Dr. Roland Greene Usher, head of the Washington University history department, said yesterday afternoon in a talk over Radio Station KSD. At best, Dr. Usher said, the Allies are beginning a long uphill fight; they must continue to resist the German thrusts for week after week, month after month and perhaps year after year.

"The loss of the war both France and Great Britain refuse to admit is probable," Dr. Usher said, "but indirectly they admit it is possible unless the United States comes to their assistance. Mr. Churchill stated the main result of the Battle of Flanders indirectly. Another British official stated it in plain words: 'The French must fight this present battle alone.'"

Heavy Loss of Equipment.

As Dr. Usher interpreted Churchill's address and the war news since then, Britain did a fine job of saving men, but had to abandon so much mechanized equipment and so many cannon that the British Army is for the moment helpless to aid France to resist the new German drive."

"In the second place," Dr. Usher continued, "Churchill said definitely that this equipment cannot be replaced in less than 'a few months.' The British army has no reserve supplies of tanks and lorries in England sufficient to enable it to take the field again now. It must wait until new equipment can be made or purchased from the United States. That is something to be borne in mind not merely in relation to the present battle but in relation to the expected invasion of England."

On the other hand, Dr. Usher found relief in the evidence that France, although losing heavily in men and also in equipment, still had the bulk of its men and equipment to throw into the present struggle for Paris. At the same time he pointed out that the French losses, which might easily total 300,000 in the Battle of Flanders, would be doubly serious if the men were seasoned soldiers. At best, he said, the French army entered the Battle for Paris considerably weakened and with nothing to do but fight it alone."

Infers British Air Losses.

Another Churchill admission which Dr. Usher found discouraging dealt with British air losses. He pointed out that the Prime Minister said the Dunkerque evacuation was covered chiefly by the home defense air units from metropolitan London." That can only mean, in Dr. Uusher's opinion, that British air squadrons sent to Flanders were all but put out of action by the extent of their losses.

"Does not all this," he asked, "presume that the British air force cannot for the moment aid France without completely sacrificing the defense of England?"

Referring to Churchill's statement that the British peoples would fight on alone, and never surrender, Dr. Usher asked: "Did not that indirectly prepare them for the loss of France by a total German victory there, if not now at some future date?"

After quoting Churchill on how the British empire across the seas, guarded by the British fleet, would carry on the fight if the island was invaded and conquered, Dr. Usher asked: "Was he not declaring a British policy already determined upon and was he not preparing the people for it—for the loss of the island itself? They must face it, he says in effect. The fleet will withdraw, presumably to Canada, and continue the war 'until the New World in all its strength and might begins the rescue of the old.' To most people he was referring to the United States. Do the British statesmen now feel that the war is lost unless the United States will really intervene?"

TOWN SQUARE PLAYERS START SECOND SEASON

"Bride the Sun Shines On" Is Opening Comedy for Theater on Roof.

With an improved stage and lighting system, a more skilled company of players and even a better attendance, the Town Square Theater started its second season last night in its rooftop playhouse at Delmar boulevard and Euclid avenue. The opening comedy is Will Cotton's "The Bride the Sun Shines On," which was a vehicle for Henry Hull and Dorothy Gish on Broadway in 1931.

The play is a daffy kind of romantic farce in which a bride cannot make up her mind whether to marry the man to whom she has been engaged or the organist who is to play at her wedding. The setting is in an upper class country house in Westchester County, New York.

Last night's audience found much to amuse it—a bridegroom who is worried because he has had no lunch, a bride perplexed by her own affections and a mother whose mind is on wedding cake, minister, ring and old shoes. Gushy young women in wedding finery and the usual hustle and bustle of such occasions give the comedy its necessary pitch of excitement.

Outstanding players are Lucille Williamson as the bride, Milton Daily as groom, Gene Marshall as the bride's old flame, Nellcy Pratte and Al Hohengarten as the parents and Juanita McGuire, as the beauty who pursues Marshall. Herbert Macklin gets much out of his bit part as the minister.

The cast had been thoroughly rehearsed and ably directed by Willard Holland, the setting by Owen Miller and costumes by Jack Handford Jr., contribute much to the production. Only one thing detracted from the enjoyment to any great extent. Breezes which swept over the roof often carried away the players' voices so that the audience missed a considerable part of the dialogue.

The comedy will be given again tonight and on the Friday and Saturday nights of the next two weeks.

JAMES HALL, FORMERLY STAR OF MOVIES, DIES IN OBSCURITY

JERSEY CITY, N. J., June 8 (AP).—James Hall, once a $2500-a-week Hollywood movie actor but of recent years an entertainer in small New Jersey night clubs, died in obscurity yesterday at 39.

Hall had a leading role in the film "Hell's Angels." He appeared in the silent version of "Four Sons" and was leading man for Pola Negri in "Hotel Imperial" in 1927, Bebe Daniels in "Stranded in Paris" in 1926, and Clara Bow in "The Fleet's In" in 1928.

Suddenly he dropped from the film world and later made an unsuccessful attempt to return to the stage on which he began his acting career as a boy of 15 in the "Ziegfeld Follies."

Two weeks ago he entered the Jersey City Medical Center suffering from cirrhosis of the liver. He resided in a rooming house.

TALK OF RAIDS ON U. S. 'BOGEY,' WHEELER SAYS

Asserts Reality to Face Is Devastation of Europe Whoever Wins.

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP).—Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, said last night that the nation should deal in realities "instead of bogey stories about air bases from which giant hordes of planes will bomb New York, St. Louis and New Orleans."

In his recent defense message to Congress, President Roosevelt said that aviation had raised the possibility that nearby bases might be used for attacks on this country. He mentioned the flying time from points outside the United States to St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

In an address before the International League for Peace and Freedom, Wheeler asserted that "in this war as in the last war, the victors will be the horsemen of the Apocalypse — famine, disease and death. Starvation and poverty will hold sway throughout Europe."

What Europe Will Face.

"If Hitler wins," Wheeler said, "he will have the same problems that the Allies will have if they win—feeding hungry populations, endeavoring to prevent great revolutions from sweeping through the conquered countries. Those problems will be more than sufficient to occupy Hitler or the Allies.

"Let us face these realities instead of bogey stories about air bases from which giant hordes of planes will bomb New York, St. Louis and New Orleans.

"After the war the world will look to and need a strong and prosperous democratic nation, a country that can lend its resources not toward building instruments of death, but instruments of life, homes and hospitals, laboratories and universities. Let's not make war on men; let's make it on poverty.

Suggestion for Columnists.

"There are many people in this country who feel we should enter the war now. To all these, I say —you personally can go. Go to Canada and join the Allied forces, or volunteer here for ambulance service abroad, or go to Germany if you want to fight for Hitler.

"The belligerents can use you in their mechanized warfare, whether you are old or young, college professor or newspaper columnist."

The People's Anti-War Mobilization, sponsored by the league and allied organizations, adopted a resolution asking that Congress remain in session, and that it provide for a national referendum on any proposal that this country go to war.

The resolution asserted that the United States should refuse to make loans and gifts of American planes and Government supplies to belligerents "as practically and psychologically equivalent to a declaration of war."

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 8 (AP).—A. C. Millspaugh, chief clerk in the office of the Secretary of State and a State employe for 40 years, died last night after a month's illness.

LITTLE SYMPHONY OPENS SIXTH SEASON

Largest Paid Audience It Has Had Hears Brilliant Program.

The St. Louis Little Symphony opened its sixth season of outdoor concerts last night in Washington University Quadrangle before what was estimated as the largest paid audience in its history. About 1500 people were present despite the threatening weather of the late afternoon and provided by their appreciation an atmosphere of enjoyment that put the final touch of success on the occasion.

Conducting the best orchestra the Little Symphony has yet assembled and with a program that was admirably designed for the spring and the night, Herbert Weiskopf, a Czech musician and a newcomer to St. Louis, made a good impression. The finer interpretative touches are necessarily lost in the open air but it was still evident that the conductor had a feeling for nuance, the well modeled phrase and the fluent line. His stick ran away with him in the matter of tempi once or twice. The menuetto was so fast in the G Minor symphony of Mozart as to make the music almost frivolous and the finale was also a bit rushed.

Besides the Mozart Symphony the orchestra and Mr. Weiskopf played with an appropriate show of youthful enthusiasm the Italian Symphony of Mendelssohn, a Toccata, Bourree and Gigue by Scarlatti in an arrangement by Alfredo Casella and two excerpts from the entr'acte music from Schubert's "Rosamunde."

It was all charming music and superior music and the small orchestra played with spirit, precision and with a consistently appealing tone quality.

Hans Lange, the regular conductor, will conduct the next concert of the series Friday night.

STOCK TRADE IS EXTREMELY SLOW; FINAL LIST MIXED

Word That the German Push Was Progressing in Northern France Tends to Chill Speculative Urge of Operators.

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP). — War news provided scant bullish stimulation for the stock market today and leading issues shifted over a narrowly irregular trail.

It was one of the slowest sessions since July 8 of last year, transfers for the two hours totaled 199,270 shares.

Final price changes mostly were in minor fractions either way.

Reports from Paris that the Nazis were making progress with their drive in Northern France offset to some degree further indications the French were putting up a stiff resistance. Bulletins placing the Germans within 50 miles or so of Paris were a bit disappointing to speculative forces which had been counting on the Allies holding on the Somme-Aisne front.

Domestic business developments were still the main sustaining market influence, brokers said, notwithstanding a little more pessimism regarding proposed imposition of heavy defense taxes on both individuals and corporations.

"Free" sterling backed away, along with the French franc, following the ruling of the British that the official and higher rate for this currency would henceforth be used for all foreign commerce. Bonds were steady and commodities mixed.

Motors Are Higher.

Motors managed to tack on modest plus signs now and then as talk was heard of a few of these companies going into armaments lines in a big way.

Willys-Overland common and preferred were up most of the day following announcement this concern, with a subsidiary, would enter the munitions field.

General Motors and Chrysler were resistant. The former was understood to be in a position to take care of expected army orders without any large increase in payrolls.

Ahead at one time or another were Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, General Electric, Anaconda, International Nickel, Eastman Kodak and Consolidated Edison.

Inclined to lag were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, Owens-Illinois, Texas Corp., Boeing and U. S. Rubber preferred.

Doing fairly well in a sluggish curb market were American Gas, Gulf Oil, International Petroleum, Mead Johnson, N. J. Zinc, Pantepec and Niagara Hudson Power. Backward were Great Northern Paper, Lake Shore and St. Regis Paper.

Overnight Developments.

Boardrooms found considerable encouragement in reports from steel centers indicating some mills are now operating at or near capacity, while production in others is at a peak level for several years. Forecasts were that output next week would jump to 90 per cent in the Chicaago district, better than 70 per cent at Youngstown and about 88 per cent at Birmingham.

The Federal Reserve summary showed a sharp drop in the country's department store sales during the week ended June 1. Compared with the like week a year ago, the decline amounted to 9 per cent. Wheat declines were at Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Richmond.

BOND PRICES ADVANCE IN FINAL TRADE OF WEEK

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP). — Bonds moved up fractions to more than a point by fore part of last hour, even recently harried foreign loans, participating.

Among gainers were German 5½s of '65, Belgium 6½s, Canada 4s, Italy 7s and Milan 6½s.

Uruguay 6s of '64 plunged around 14 points on a single sale.

Buying was highly selective in the domestic group and few traders appeared willing to risk large commitments over the week end.

Favored issues included Commonwealth Edison convertible 3½s, Erie 1st 4s, Baltimore & Ohio stamped convertibles, Pennsylvania Glass Sand 4½s, Shell Union 2½s and Pacific Gas 3¾s.

United States Governments drifted within a range of a few points as traders waited announcement next week of Treasury financing plans.

ERRATIC MOVEMENTS IN STERLING EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP).—The "free" British pound fluctuated violently in the foreign exchange market today while traders tried to measure possible effects of Englands' drastic control measures.

It plunged 18 cents but recovered to a net loss of around 11 cents. The rate was highly sensitive to small orders and instanced simultaneous trades at widely variant prices. Later it was 13c off at $3.72.

Present function of the local market appears directed toward cleaning up existing contracts but experts said official word still was lacking as to how settlement would be made for claims entered into prior to the decision to restrict payment for British goods to an exchange rate set by the Bank of England.

The French franc paralleled action of the pound and dropped around .06½ of a cent. The Canadian dollar lost ¼ cent at 78¾ U. S. cents, only one cent above the record low recently established. The Swiss franc was unchanged.

Canada: Official Canadian Control Board rates for U. S. dollars: Buying 10 per cent premium, selling 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market 21¼ per cent discount, or 78.50 U. S. cents.

Europe: Great Britain, demand 3.71, cables 3.72, 60-day 3.69¾, 90-day 3.67½. COMMODITY MARKETS

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP). — Wheat declined but other big commodities advanced in futures markets despite the caution imposed by war uncertainty.

At Chicago wheat lost ¾ to 1 cent a bushel. Selling factors included war news and satisfactory crop news.

Late demand pushed cotton forward 25 to 40 cents a bale at New York. Contract holders were reluctant sellers except at price advances.

Copper rose more than 1-10 cent a pound for some deliveries in the wake of news of broad-scale demand for spot metal. Rubber and hides moved up moderately. Cottonseed oil slipped a notch while wool tops were irregular after sharp gains earlier in the week.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities, based on 1926 as 100, declined to 71.31 from 71.40 Friday.

WEATHER AND WAR NEWS SEND WHEAT OFF AT WEEK END

CHICAGO, June 8 (AP).—Wheat prices fell slightly more than a cent a bushel today and then steadied.

Selling was based largely on war news which traders said appeared to be unfavorable to the Allied situation, satisfactory weather over the domestic grain belt and reports of good to excellent crop conditions over most of the spring wheat area both sides of the Canadian border. On the basis of present prospects private crop experts forecast a large U. S. spring wheat harvest, as well as possibly another bumper Canadian yield.

The setback in prices of other grains put most quotations rye and oats back to the minimums permitted by trading rules and caused virtual cessation of activity in these pits. The soybeans futures trade also was deadlocked, with No. 2 yellow beans selling at 81 cents, or 8½c below the minimum price for July futures.

Wheat closed ¾@1 cent lower than yesterday, July 80@80⅛c, Sept. 80⅝@¾c; corn, ½@⅞c off, July 62¾c, Sept. 61⅜c; oats unchanged to ½c lower.

Depressed by morning war news including reports of German advances into the Weygand line and Italian threats, wheat prices early tumbled more than a cent, erasing most of the gain scored yesterday.

Some early buying was credited to flour interests and dealers who anticipated Government flour purchases over the week end for relief distribution, but this soon was absorbed. Moisture in the soft winter wheat area and over the corn belt and in the spring wheat zone both sides of the Canadian border encouraged the selling.

Commission houses received reports from handlers of grain that merchandising is being hampered by the fact that trading in futures is restricted by minimum prices now in effect. Only wheat and corn and December rye and July oats sold above the minimums established three weeks ago to check demoralized selling in the grain pits. Quotations for wheat and corn were only a few cents above the minimums. Traders said merchandising of the new wheat crop, which is beginning to come to market, may be hampered by inability of dealers to place hedges.

Due partly to the fact that Minneapolis prices have been at the minimums much of the time this week, with unhedged cash wheat selling at a discount of as much as 2 cents under hedged grain, receipts at that terminal have diminished sharply. Only 97 cars arrived today compared with 227 a week ago and 327 a year ago. Marketings at Duluth and Chicago also showed a sharp decline.

Other grains declined with wheat although losses were slight. The Government confirmed trade information earlier in the week that it is moving some corn obtained through default of loans into the Pacific Coast area to compete with Argentine corn en route to North American ports. The Commodity Credit Corporation estimated 1,000,000 bushels are being shipped under land-grant freight rates from Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota and Minnesota.

The second official Argentine estimate of 1940 corn production was 418,897,000 bushels, about 16,000,000 less than the first estimate. Last year the crop was only 191,496,000 bushels. Since April 1 Argentina has exported only 28,115,000 bushels compared with 130,900,000 the corresponding 1939 period.

Lard eased with grains.

WEATHER AND WAR NEWS SEND WHEAT OFF AT WEEK END

CHICAGO, June 8 (AP).—Wheat prices fell slightly more than a cent a bushel today and then steadied.

Selling wa sbased largely on war news which traders said appeared to be unfavorable to the Allied situation, satisfactory weather over the domestic grain belt and reports of good to excellent crop conditions over most of the spring wheat area both sides of the Canadian border. On the basis of present prospects private crop experts forecast a large U. S. spring wheat harvest, as well as possibly another bumper Canadian yield.

The setback in prices of other grains put most rye and oats quotations back to the minimums permitted by trading rules and caused virtual cessation of activity in these pits. The soybeans futures trade also was deadlocked, with No. 2 yellow beans selling at 81 cents, or 8½c below the minimum price for July futures.

Wheat closed ¾ @ 1 cent lower than yesterday, July 80 @ 80⅛c, Sept. 80⅝ @ ¾c; corn, ½ @ ⅞c off, July 62¾c, Sept. 61⅜c; oats unchanged to ½c lower.

Depressed by morning war news including reports of German advances into the Weygand line and Italian threats, wheat prices early tumbled more than a cent, erasing most of the gain scored yesterday.

Some early buying was credited to flour interests and dealers who anticipated Government flour purchases over the week end for relief distribution, but this soon was absorbed. Moisture in the soft winter wheat area and over the corn belt and in the spring wheat zone both sides of the Canadian border encouraged the selling.

Commission houses received reports from handlers of grain that merchandising is being hampered by the fact that trading in futures is restricted by minimum prices now in effect. Only wheat and corn and December rye and July oats sold above the minimums established three weeks ago to check demoralized selling in the grain pits. Quotations for wheat and corn were only a few cents above the minimums. Traders said merchandising of the new wheat crop, which is beginning to come to market, may be hampered by inability of dealers to place hedges.

Due partly to the fact that Minneapolis prices have been at the minimums much of the time this week, with unhedged cash wheat selling at a discount of as much as 2 cents under hedged grain, receipts at that terminal have diminished sharply. Only 97 cars arrived today compared with 227 a week ago and 327 a year ago. Marketings at Duluth and Chicago also showed a sharp decline.

Other grains declined with wheat although losses were slight. The Government confirmed trade information earlier in the week that it is moving some corn obtained through default of loans into the Pacific Coast area to compete with Argentine corn en route to North American ports. The Commodity Credit Corporation estimated 1,000,000 bushels are being shipped under land-grant freight rates from Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota and Minnesota.

The second official Argentine estimate of 1940 corn production was 418,897,000 bushels, about 16,000,000 less than the first estimate. Last year the crop was only 191,496,000 bushels. Since April 1 Argentina has exported only 28,115,000 bushels compared with 130,900,000 the corresponding 1939 period.

Lard eased with grains.

FAIRMOUNT PARK, June 8.—The veteran Joe Dyer, riding the favorite Brentwood Lad in the opening race this afternoon, made a bad guess as to the time and manner of making his bid for the lead, and he wound up in third place, beaten three lengths by Frank Ormont, a 7-to-1 shot.

Dyer's mount was carried extremely wide on the turn, losing 10 yards of ground and leaving the way open for Frank Ormont to score, with Jim Wray in the saddle. Lady Hav finished second, beaten one length.

About 10,000 fans in shirt sleeves watched the program.

The weather was clear and the track fast.

Hustle Along, carrying most of the upblic's money, scored an easy four-length victory in the second race in which Miss Nadi was second and The Mayor third.

First Victory.

Padra Girl, a filly that had never before won a race, was good enough to outlast the favorite, Prince Danny, in taking the third. They were a good eight lengths better than the third horse, Smiling Duel.

Ticket Deadline Monday.

Four Crews Arrive.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 8 (AP).—Crews from four colleges converged on Poughkeepsie yesterday, making a total of 11 eights now in training for the intercollegiate regatta, June 18.

Disqualify Six in Open Golf

CANTERBURY GOLF CLUB, Cleveland, June 8 (AP).—Six players who jumped the gun and started their fourth and final rounds in the National Open golf championships ahead of scheduled time and without reporting to the official starter were disqualified by the tournament committee today. One of them, Ed Oliver of Hornell, N. Y., shot a 71 on the round fo ra 72-hole total of 287, and he was hot under the collar.

Leland Willcox of Waterloo, Ia., further enlivened the day by shooting a hole-in-one on the 176-yard third hole. The young professional whaled the ball to the green with a five-iron and watched it roll into the cup. He was too far behind the leaders for it to do him much good, though.

St. Louis' two remaining entrants fell by the wayside in the second round. Eddie Held toured the course in 83 for an aggregate of 162, while Tony Kleebusch had 81 for a 176 total.

Hornsby Named New Manager At Oklahoma City

Rogers Hornsby has a baseball job again. The former pilot of both the Cardinals and Browns and one-time kingpin hitter of the National League, will depart early this evening for Oklahoma City, where he will take over the managership of the Indians of the Texas League.

Hornsby closed arrangements with the Oklahoma City club early this afternoon by telephone and said he could not say anything about the situation in his new location because the proposition had come up hurriedly. He will succeed Jim Keesey as pilot of a club that is down in the race.

Thus, Hornsby, who led the Cardinals to St. Louis' first pennant in 38 years in 1936, follows by a day, to the Texas League, Pitcher Dizzy Dean, who pitched the Redbirds to a flag and a world championship in 1934. The Cardinals had not won a title until Hornsby led them. They have not won one since Dean helped them to the pennant in 1934.

Hornsby's last post in the game was as manager of Baltimore. He left the Orioles a couple of weeks before the end of the 1939 season.

Seek First Victory.

The Commerce Coals and the Briggs Hoffman baseball teams will be seeking their first victory in the Greater St. Louis Night Baseball League when they meet tonight at National Park, Kingshighway and Arsenal, at 8:15 o'clock. The Coals have lost to the Brocks and the Double Colas while the Hoffmans have been beaten by the Borbein Youngs, Natural Set Ups and Brocks.

PEPPER MARTIN AND MIZE GET TRIPLES; BOWMAN REMOVED

By J. Roy Stockton

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, June 8.—Bob Bowman, freshman dependable on the 1939 Cardinal staff, was trying for his second victory of the season this afternoon as he faced the Giants in the first game of a doubleheader. Roy Joiner, a lefthander, was on the hill for the visitors. Acting Manager Mike Gonzalez sent Pepper Martin to right field in place of the slumping Enos Slaughter.

It was Bill DeLancey day, and the Cardinal catcher, who came back this year after being out four years because of illness, received an automobile from friends in a ceremony at home plate. Lawrence Bogher, treasurer of the De Lancey day committee, made the presentation. Pepper Martin, captain of the Cardinals, presented a set of driving harness to Bill as a gift from his teammates.

Dunn, Jorda and Sears were the umpires.

It was Ladies' Day and the attendance was estimated at about 7500, including about 3000 cash customers.

The first game:

FIRST INNING — GIANTS — Whitehead walked. J. Moore struck out and Whitehead was doubled trying to steal second, Owen to Orengo. Orengo threw out Demaree.

CARDINALS—Witek threw out J. Martin. S. Martin popped to Joiner. T. Moore singled to left. Medwick flied to J. Moore.

SECOND — GIANTS — Young singled to center. O'Dea walked. Ott lined to Orengo, and the Cardinals narrowly missed executing a triple play. Orengo's throw to Marion doubled Young off second, but Mize missed Marion's relay to first and was charged with an error when O'Dea reached second. Marion threw out Jurges.

CARDINALS — Mize flied to Demaree. Orengo grounded to Jurges. Marion singled to center. Marion was out stealing, O'Dea to Witek.

THIRD—GIANTS—Witek singled through the box. Joiner sacrificed, Owen to Orengo. Whitehead popped to Orengo. Orengo threw out J. Moore.

CARDINALS—Owen doubled to left-center. Bowman bunted but Owen was out at third, O'Dea to Whitehead. J. Martin singled to right, Bowman stopping at second. S. Martin struck out. T. Moore flied to Ott.

CARDINALS—Medwick doubled to center. Mize tripled against the wall in right center, scoring Medwick. Orengo walked. Marion struck out. Demaree ran in for a god catch of Owen's fly. Gutteridge batted for Bowman and flied to Demareee. ONE RUN.

FIFTH — GIANTS — Russell pitched for the Cardinals. Russell threw out Joiner. Whitehead doubled to center. J. Moore doubled to center, scoring Whitehead. Demaree flied to Medwick. Young lined to T. Moore. ONE RUN.

CARDINALS—J. Martin tripled to center. Witek threw out S. Martin. T. Moore popped to Jurges. Medwick singled to left, scoring J. Martin. Mize was hit by a pitched ball. Mize was angry about it and exchanged words with Joiner, but players interferred when it seemed there might be a fistic exchange. Orengo lined to Whitehead. ONE RUN.

SIXTH — GIANTS—O'Dea filed to T. Moore. Ott doubled to left. Russell threw out Jurges. Witek was passed intentionally. Joiner flied to J. Martin.

CARDINALS—Marion singled over second. Marion was picked off first and retired, Joiner to Young to Jurges to Young to Jurges. Jurges threw out Owen. Russell was called on strikes.

SEVENTH—GIANTS — Whitehead flied to T. Moore. J. Moore lined to T. Moore. Demaree flied to J. Martin.

GONZALEZ' MAGIC WORKS PERFECTLY IN SERIES OPENER

The Gonzalez magic was wonderful in the opening game of the series. Making his bow in his second stretch as field director, pending the arrival Monday of Billy Southworth, Miguel Angel made the Cardinals as they were under all their managers when those managers were winning. Enemy batters hit into double plays at critical times and though the Redbirds made only six hits off Hal Schumacher and none off Walter Brown, they were good enough to stand off all New York challenges and win, 3 to 2.

The ways of winning managers are remarkable. For instance, in the very first inning the skies were none too bright. Terry Moore opened the frame with a single and stole second, but Stuart Martin and Slaughter were retired and it looked like another fine finish that wouldn't jell. Joe Medwick sent Moore home with a single to left, but after Mize singled, Joe Orengo walked, and there the Cardinals were with the bases filled, but with one of their weakest hitters at the plate.

By W. J. McGoogan.

It will be a dancing instructor against a Notre Dame student for the golf championship of the St. Louis district in the 36-hole final at Norwood Hills Country Club tomorrow. Mark Schlude, the bag-toting ballet man, ties up with Gene Fehlig, he of the golfing family of Fehligs, who have made golf history at Notre Dame for years with Vincent and Lou both having captained the Irish.

This much was decided yesterday when Fehlig eliminated the defending champion, Jonas Weiss of Westwood, 6 and 4, in their 36-hole semifinal, while Schlude knocked out Rev. E. J. Donohue, Norwood, 3 and 2.

You often hear, or read, of the winners of competitions, but you should have sat in the locker room late yesterday afternoon and heard Weiss talk of his defeat.

"I saw golf shots that I never thought were possible," said the defeated champion. "Gene sank a number of putts on me in the morning and in the afternon until I was blue in the face. 'Gene,' I'd say, 'don't sink another 20-footer or I'm through with you, but he'd do it.'

What Are You Gonna Do?

"Take the thirty-first hole. I was stiff with my second for a sure birdie and I turned to Gene and said, 'Now, no miracles, Gene; don't pull another one on me. And do you know what he did? He slapped his second shot to within a few inches of the hole for a "gimmie" birdie.'

"Now, I was down at the time," continued Jonas, "and I figured it just wasn't my day. So what did I do? I thought it over and figured I could lose at No. 14, which is a whole lot closer to the clubhouse than No. 15, so when Gene smacked his second home at the fourteenth and I missed my putt for a 4, I conceded him a birdie and let it go at that."

Thus, the district is certain to have a new champion. Neither Fehlig nor Schlude has ever reached the final before. Gene is a former junior titleholder and spent the first part of last winter in a college in the South where he thought he could play golf every day. Finally he succumbed to the lure of Notre Dame, where his brothers had made history, and matriculated there in February. He will be eligible for the golf team next spring.

Gene was down to Weiss at the start of their match, but once he got out in front he stayed there. He finished the morning round 2 up on Jonas and in the afternoon he held a lead on the turn for home then, after getting pars on the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth, he finished the match with three successive birdies.

Schlude, toting his own bag, as he has all week, except on those occasions when friends forcibly took it from him, was 1 up on Rev. Donohue in the morning and his par shooting added to the lead in the afternoon despite stubborn resistance.

Mark doesn't have to carry his own clubs. He has a steady job as a ballroom dancing instructor, but he started lugging the clubs early in the week and decided he wouldn't break his luck by changing his system.

His sharp shooting didn't permit Rev. Donohue to get ahead, and he ran out the match, 3 and 2.

Troubled by Soft Greens.

The players were bothered somewhat by the soft greens, made that way by the rains of the previous night. Weiss three-putted six greens in the morning round and blamed hunks of mud picked up by his ball on shots to the greens for most of his trouble.

Rev. R. C. Dobson, Bellerive, and Jack Hemker, Normandie, are scheduled to play their Class A final today, as Rev. Dobson is unable to play on Sundays.

Two Young Stars to Seek Honors in T-M Golf Title Tourney

Two of golf's youngest "big time" competitors, Jeanne Cline of Bloomington, Ill., age 16, and Phyllis Otto of Atlantic, Ia., aged 15, are listed among the 29 new out-of-town entrants for the women's Trans-Mississippi tournament entrants, and they made a very favorable impression with their fine games during yesterday afternoon's practice session at Glen Echo. The entry total is now placed at about 155.

Miss Otto, winner last week of the Iowa State girls' interscholastic title, and winner 1937 and 1938 of the Iowa junior championship, breezed around the Glen Echo course through yesterday's drizzle in 79. Last year she won the championship consolation title in the Trans-Mississippi.

Hailed throughout the country the past few years as the "child wonder of golf," Miss Cline has yet to win her first big tournament. Jeanne placed fourth in the Mid-South medal play tourney at Pinehurst. Last year she reached the semifinals of the Western open at Westwood. A junior at Bloomington High School, Miss Cline won her city golf title. Yesterday she negotiated the first nine in 40.

Marion Miley on Hand.

One of the finest golfers to put in an appearance was the 1935 and 1936 Trans-Mississippi champion, Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky. Miss Miley, a newcomer to St. Louis' golfing circles, decided to wait until today to begin practice. Miss Miley won the 1935 and 1937 Western amateur, 1937 and 1938 Southern title, 1935-36 and '37 Western Derby tournaments, and also held the Kentucky State title for six years. She played in her first T.-M. event in 1934.

A familiar figure in the 1931 Trans-Mississippi played at the St. Louis Country Club, Mrs. Russell C. Mann of Milwaukee, formerly Lucille Robinson, put in her appearance too late to get in a practice round. Mrs. Mann, runnerup to Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, in the 1934 tourney, won the 1933 Western amateur, 1936 South Atlantic, was a member of the 1934 Curtis Cup team and has held the Wisconsin State title for the past two years.

The national champion, Betty Jameson of San Antonio, paid little attention to scoring as she went around the course yesterday. She played several balls from different angles on each of the holes. Patty Berg, defending Trans-Mississippi titleholder, and herself a former national champion, did likewise, although she played the first nine seriously enough to score 36, two under the women's par.

82 for Mrs. Caughey.

Two St. Louis golfers, Mrs. R. I. Caughey of Westborough and Mrs. Charles Harting of Sunset, scored 82s, while Mrs. I. S. Hynes of Westborough, former district champion, shot 83. Mrs. H. , Silverforb of Kansas City had 87; Mrs. Jack DeFeo, Kansas City, 88, while another young Kansas City golfer, Virginia Newhouse, scored 89.

An 18-hole exhibition match, starting at 10 o'clock, features tomorrow morning's program, while the Trans-Mississippi's driving, approach and putting contests will take place at 1 p. m.

Only out-of-town contestants will be allowed to practice over the course today and tomorrow.

Woodruff Sets World's Record For 800 Meters

COMPTON, Cal., June 8 (AP).—Long John Woodruff, Pittsburgh's national collegiate champion in 1939, bettered the world record for the 800-meter run last night by a full second, traveling the distance in 1 minute 48.6 seconds and defeating Paul Moore of Stanford.

Eight thousand fans saw the Negro take a lead at the start, hold it throughout and finish 10 yards in front of the Stanford star. Elroy Robinson, competing for the Olympic Club of San Francisco in 1937, set the accepted record of 1 minute 49.6 seconds.

Max Baer Begins Training for Bout With Two-Ton Tony

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., June 8 (AP).—Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, opened training yesterday for his July 2 fight with Tony Galento in Jersey City's Roosevelt Stadium.

Baer, donning gloves for the first time since he whipped Babe Ritchie last September, boxed two rounds with Jim Howell. He weighed 228 pounds and said he expected to take off 12 to 14 before meeting Galento.

Harris of Indiana Is Meet Star

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 8 (AP).—The Central Collegiate track carnival is getting bigger every year, but none of the ambitious title seekers are having much luck breaking the virtual title monopoly now held by Notre Dame and by Marquette, the host school.

The Hilltoppers took their fourth Central championship last night since the competition was started in 1926, leaving Marquette only one behind the Irish in total titles won. Notre Dame, which finished fourth, won the first meet, three in a row starting in 1929 and again captured top honors in 1938. Thirty-two schools competed this year.

Marquette had no individuals to match Indiana University's Archie Harris or Oklahoma's George Koettel, but team strength and balance gave the Hilltoppers the crown with a total of 41 1-5 points. The victors counted a point or more in 11 of the 16 events, but won only two first places and tied for another.

A heavy rain fell through most of the night competition, dispelling new record possibilities. The Hoosier star who won the shot put and discus in the Big Ten meet duplicated that feat here, setting a new record in the discus in the afternoon trials with a heave of 163 feet, 8¾ inches. His feat broke the 1939 mark of 162 feet, 9½ inches, set by William Faymonville of Notre Dame.

Oklahoma's Koettel finished second in the 100-yard dash to little Leo Tarrant of Alabama (Montgomery) Teachers and defeated him in the 220-yard dash. His first and second gave the four-man Sooner team nine of its 16 points.

Indiana was runner-up to Marquette with 28 3-5 points. Wisconsin scored 27 1-10 and Notre Dame was fourth at 24 1-10.

Harris, Indiana University weight star, was chosen outstanding individual athlete at the meet and awarded the John Nicholson Trophy emblematic of the honor. Clay Bryant, who appealed to Commissioner Landis, after he had been indefinitely suspended by the Cubs. However, the commissioner refused to help him following a conference yesterday.

Landis Refuses To Act in Case Of Cub Hurler

CHICAGO, June 8 (AP).—Clay Bryant, whose conferences with Commissioner K. M. Landis failed to alter his suspension without pay by the Chicago Cubs, had a third meeting ahead of him today—with owner P. K. Rigley.

The get-together was arranged yesterday after Landis ruled the Chicago club was "within its rights in suspending the player until he gets into condition to pitch."

Bryant had wanted this year's salary in full and the club to stand the expense of further treatment on his arm, ailing since 1938. He later asked for his unconditional release. Wrigley had refused on all counts.

MRS. C. U. BECKER BEATS $5000 INCOME CLAIM

Tax Appeals Board Rules U. S. Can't Levy on $59,000 Left in Safety Deposit.

The United States Board of Tax Appeals, in an opinion received here yesterday, ruled in favor of Mrs. Mary B. T. Becker, widow of Charles U. Becker, Missouri Secretary of State, in her appeal from the Government's assessment of $5091 income taxes for 1931-34 against Becker's estate.

The Government had claimed the taxes were due on $59,280 found in safe deposit boxes of two Jefferson City banks and a Kansas City bank after his death in 1934.

The board upheld Mrs. Becker's contention that the money was Becker's accumulated savings of a lifetime from his tax-exempt salary as Secretary of State and his earnings as editor and writer prior to 1919.

The opinion asserted there had been a preponderance of evidence to show that Becker carried "his thrift almost to a point of penuriousness," and that his "zeal to save amounted almost to an obsession."

Becker was Secretary of State from 1921 to 1933. Mrs. Becker resides with a sister at 6227 Northwood avenue. The opinion was received yesterday by William M. Fitch, attorney for Mrs. Becker.

110 PASSENGERS RESCUED AS LINER HITS BREAKWATER

Chilean Ship Towed to Anchorage After Accident at Entrance to Cristobal Harbor.

CRISTOBAL, Canal Zone, June 8 (AP).—With water in its bow up to the anchor line, the 7216-ton Chilean liner Copiapo was towed today to an anchorage just off the Panama Canal channel after striking the west breakwater at the entrance of Cristobal harbor.

The ship's 110 passengers and its crew were rescued without injury. A passenger, Dr. Adolfo Villaneuva Lazo, a Peruvian delegate to the Washington Scientifc Congress, said panic followed when the ship struck, but all passengers were taken off by launches and tugs.

Some of the passengers were American women en route to join their husbands in the Panama Canal Zone. Hans Hauser, noted skier, was aboard, en route to Chile.

Officials blamed the accident on a navigator's failure to see the breakwater lights.

CLIPPER TURNS BACK FOURTH OF WAY ACROSS ATLANTIC

Strong Headwinds Cause Return to New York; U. S. Admiral, Italian General Aboard.

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP).—Pan American Airways' Atlantic Clipper which took off for Europe yesterday turned around when a fourth of the way across the Atlantic and landed here early today.

The plane put about when 800 miles out because of strong headwinds instead of the usual tail winds, Pan American officers said.

The Clipper had 21 passengers, including Rear Admiral David Le Breton, who was going to take command of the United States naval squadron at Lisbon, Portugal, and Gen. Stefano Cagna, director of civil aviation in Italy. The plane also had a ton of mail.

The Clipper took off at about 2 p. m. and landed about 4 a. m., a flight of 14 hours.

The line said the flight might be attempted again today. The next regular eastbound trans-Atlantic trip was scheduled for tomorrow.

CANADA MAY MAKE VISITORS FROM U. S. OBTAIN PASSPORTS

Premier Says Regulation Announced at Washington May Be Met by Reciprocal Action.

OTTAWA, Ontario, June 8 (Canadian Press).—The United States Government requirement of passports for Canadians visiting that country after July 1 may result in a reciprocal regulation by Canada, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King suggested in Parliament.

Representations had been made to Washington, he said.

He spoke in reply to Conservative Leader R. B. Hanson, who asked whether Canada would take action similar to that announced in Washington.

POCKET DEVICE TO TEST DRIVERS' BREATH FOR DRINK

Suspect Would Be Asked by Policeman to Inflate Small Balloon.

NEW YORK, June 8 (AP). — A new and simplified apparatus for the chemical determination of alcohol in breath was described today to the American Society of Clinical Pathologists by a Boston doctor, who said it was compact enough to be carried in a traffic policeman's hip pocket.

The invention of Dr. Walter W. Jetter of Taunton (Mass.) State Hospital, who had the assistance of Glenn C. Forrester, Niagara University chemist, the device was described, in a prepared paper, by Dr. Merrill Moore, of the Harvard Medical School, who reported he had experimented successfully with it on 100 alcoholics at Boston's Washingtonian Hospital.

The apparatus, weighing only four ounces, consists of a thin rubber tube, similar to a child's toy balloon, attached to a pair of small glass tubes containing separate chemicals.

In practical use, Moore said, a driver suspected of drinking could be asked by the officer at the scene of questioning to inflate the balloon, and then the rest of the procedure would be automatic, with one chemical (magnesium porchlorate) absorbing the alcohol in the breath, and the other chemical, a caustic soda compound, absorbing the carbon dioxide in the breath.

Later measurement of the absorbed materials by chemist, Moore said, would allow determination of the alcohol concentration in the subject's blood—one of the indications of the degree of intoxication.

920 EAST SIDE STEELWORKERS TO DISCUSS ACTION ON WAGES

CIO Men in Granite City Plant Meeting on Contract Demands; AFL on Strike.

The 920 CIO steelworkers employed at the National Enameling and Stamping Co. plant in Granite City will meet this afternoon in the Granite City Labor Temple to discuss action in support of their demands for a wage increase and a vacation with pay.

Yesterday 42 AFL machinists struck at the plant following rejection by the company of demands for restoration of a wage cut of 7½ cents an hour, taken in 1938, plus a 10 per cent increase. The increase would raise the machinists' hour. The company offered to rewages from 92½ cents to $1.10 an new the old wage contract and to grant vacations based on length of service, it was stated.

The steelworkers are also demanding restoration of the 7½-cent cut, plus a general 10 per cent increase. Otto J. Heyer, plant manager, said he planned to meet with committees of both factions, probably today, and expected an early settlement of the dispute. He said the machinists' strike was the first in 18 years at the plant.

John Doherty, director of the Steelworkers' Organizing Committee here, announced the renewal yesterday of a wage agreement covering the 1400 plant employes of the American Car & Foundry Co. Wages, ranging from 50 cents to $1.18, were unchanged.

ACCUSED SHERIFF RUNS AGAINST M'KITTRICK

Jackson County Official Runs for Place of Attorney-General Suing to Oust Him.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 8.—Sheriff James L. Williams of Jackson County, defendant in a pending ouster suit by Attorney-General Roy McKittrick charging him with failure to enforce the law in Kansas City and Jackson County, last night became a candidate against McKittrick for the Democratic nomination for Attorney-General.

Williams made his surprise move, filing his declaration of candidacy with the Secretary of State about two hours before the filing period expired. He issued a statement attacking McKittrick and charging "politicians connived to oust me from office.'"

The ouster case, in which a special commissioner who heard testimony has recommended that Williams be removed from office, is pending before the Missouri Supreme Court.

Williams charged he was "the victim of the Attorney-General's belated effort to redeem himself for four and one-half years of inactivity with reference to law enforcement." He alleged McKittrick's "good faith, sincerity and willingness to prosecute were brought into serious question."

"When Judge Allen C. Southern's clean-up grand jury was convened in Kansas City in 1939, McKittrick had been directed by Gov. Lloyd C. Stark to aid in the clean-up.

"On the other hand," Williams said, "my services were sought and eagerly accepted, and as a result of my wholehearted co-operation with that grand jury I found myself facing a trial for my office."

He said he would take his case to the people and try it at every cross-road in the State. Williams has been identified with the Shannon wing of the Kansas City Democratic machine. He said he had filed without consulting "certain elements," but did not identify them.

McKittrick last night denied Williams' charges, declaring the court records refuted them. He said that more than 70 convictions and payment of about $30,000 in fines resulted from his participation in the grand jury proceedings in Kansas City.

McKittrick now has four opponents in his race for renomination, including Williams, State Senator W. B. Whitlow of Fulton, State Representative John D. Taylor of Keytesville and Drake Watson of New London.

ELECTION BY LIVESTOCK MEN

A resolution pledging co-operation with the Federal Government in promoting better marketing of cattle was adopted by the National Livestock Exchange at the final session of its three-day convention in Hotel Jefferson yesterday.

T. J. Kirby of Sioux City, Ia., was re-elected president, and W. P. Dolan of St. Paul, Minn., was reelected treasurer, by the 200 delegates.

THE DAVISES, JOHN R. AND MANVEL, AGAIN SEEK SAME OFFICE

Both Out for U. S. Senator—Opposed Each Other in 1936 Primary.

John R. Davis, attorney and former member of the Republican City Committee, has sought public office only twice, but each time he selected a race in which one of the leading candidates has ben Manvel Davis, Kansas City attorney.

The St. Louis Davis was a last-minute entry in the contest for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, in which Manvel Davis is a leading candidate, but he told a Post-Dispatch reporter the similarity of their names had nothing to do with his decision to run for the office. "There's nothing to this talk about names," he asserted. "I'm running on my own."

He said his principal purpose in wanting to be elected is to sponsor legislation simplifying the Federal income tax laws so that "the people know what claims and exemptions they're entitled to."

In the 1936 primary election the two Davises were opponents in the campaign for the Republican nomination for Lieutenant-Governor. The Kansas City attorney won the nomination with 129,065 votes, with the St. Louisan running second with 92,692 votes. John Davis is 55 years old and resides at 2608 Virginia avenue. He was city committeeman from the Fourteenth Ward from 1926 to 1928.

A. P. LAUMAN GETS NEW JOB

Defeated East Side Police Commissioner Manages Pumping Station.

Albert P. Lauman, defeated for re-election as East St. Louis Police Commissioner a year ago, was appointed superintendent of the city's pumping station at a salary of $200 a month by Streets Commissioner Leo Dougherty yesterday.

Clifford C. Flood, who resigned as a detective sergeant last September, was appointed an inspector of streets at a salary of $140 a month.

ADMIRAL RODMAN DIES AT 81, IN WASHINGTON

With Dewey at Manila and Commanded U. S. Forces With British Grand Fleet.

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP).—Admiral Hugh Rodman, retired, died at the naval hospital last night, where he had been suffering for some time from coronary thrombosis. He was 81 years old.

Admiral Rodman was commander of a division of the navy which joined the British grand fleet during the World War. He also served with Admiral Dewey in the Spanish-American war battle of Manila Bay.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Sayre Rodman.

Gen. Pulaski Memorial Day.

WASHINGTON, June 8 (AP).—President Roosevelt approved yesterday a resolution authorizing him to proclaim Oct. 11, 1940, as "General Pulaski Memorial Day," for the commemoration of the death of Gen. Casimir Pulaski, revolutionary war hero.

COD'S VITAMIN D NOT FROM THE SUN, SCIENTIST DECIDES

Origin in Fish Liver Oil a Mystery, Biologist Writes.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 8 (AP).—A Harvard scientist said today the vitamni D, sometimes called the sunshine vitamin, found in the oils of cod and other fish apparently does not come from the sun, and that its origin in the fish is a "mystery."

Biologist George L. Clarke, writing in the Harvard Alumni Bulletin, said there is evidence that the actinic rays of the far ultraviolet range of the sun's spectrum, which make possible the formation of the vitamin for terrestrial organisms, are very rapidly absorbed in every type of water.

Furthermore, he said, there is little chance of cod getting the vitamin from organisms near the ocean's surface, since the cod is a "bottom feeder."

"Apparently," he said, "our only alternative is to suppose that the fish containing vitamin D manufacture it without the aid directly or indirectly of the ultra-violet radiation entering the ocean. This has not yet been shown to be possible."

BRITAIN'S CHILDREN ON THE MOVE AGAIN

During the long period of inactivity on the western front, many of the children, who had been evacuated from English cities to places of safety in the country, returned to their homes. Now that German bombers are active along the English east coast, thousands are being evacuated again to the west and Wales. These children were photographed as they left Southend, a coast resort. —International News Photo.

Spinach Salad Is Rich in Iron And Vitamins

By Meta Given

IF the youngsters of your household are admirers of Popeye, they will go for Spinach Salad in a big way. And even if they are not under his influence, they are bound to find it a painless way of taking this matchless source of iron and vitamins. The spinach for this salad might well be cooked along with the vegetables for dinner, or even the day before, so as to have it ready at suppertime. Mixing of the salad, too, can be done several hours ahead of time if desired, as the ingredients are supposed to marinate in the dressing.

Spinach Salad (Cost About 20c).

One and one-half pounds fresh spinach, one cup diced celery, two tablespoons chopped onion, one-half cup French dressing, five leaves lettuce, one hard-cooked egg.

Wash spinach thoroughly, leaf by leaf, in cold water. Put into saucepan with two cups water, and cook until just tender, about eight to 10 minutes. Cool and chill. Drain thoroughly, chop fine, and combine with celery and onion. Pour French dressing over it and let stand in refrigerator at least half an hour. To serve, heap on lettuce leaves, and garnish with the hard-cooked egg which has been rubbed through a sieve, yolks and whites separately. Serves five.

MENUS FOR SUNDAY.

Breakfast.

Tomato juice—one 46-ounce tin tomato juice (use half); poached eggs on toast—five eggs, 10 slices bread, butter; jelly—one-third cup jelly; coffee—two tablespoons coffee (adults only); milk—for children.

Dinner.

Beef pot roast—Two and one-half pounds beef chuck; mashed potatoes—two pounds potatoes; one-half cup milk, two tablespoons butter, salt; buttered green beans—one and one-half pounds green beans, two tablespoons butter; bread and butter—10 slices bread, butter; cherry pie—one No. 2 tin sweetened red cherries or one and one-half quarts fresh red cherries and three-fourths cup sugar, pastry for a double crust; coffe—two tablespoons coffee (adults only); milk—for children.

Supper.

Spinach salad — recipe already given; rye wafers—one-half pound rye wafers; chocolate milk—for all.

Cost for day: About $2.00.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"Bulldoze"—From a Dose of the Bull

"Bulldoze," slang for coerce or intimidate, was originally written bulldose, in which form it was a noun meaning "a dose of the bull."

Bull, here, meant a whip made of cow's hide; and "a dose of the bull" was a euphonious reference to the flogging administered by members of certain under-cover organizations of whites upon Negroes who failed to heed warnings to vote for the right political party, and who, if they persisted, were shot.

The expression originated in Louisiana during the post-Civil War period.

They'll Do It Every Time -:- By Jimmy Hatlo

My Son, My Son! -o- By Howard Spring

CHAPTER THIRTY-SIX.

THERE was one letter for Capt. Judas. As we went chugging slowly homeward, he read it again and again. He had laid the envelope on a thwart, and I noticed that it was addressed to Capt. Jude Iscott. I noticed, too, that printed across the top of the envelope was "The Mary Latter Comedy Company," and it was strange to me to think of old Judas being in communication with the world of the theater.

The Latter Company was well known. Maeve and I had occasionally seen them in Manchester. They toured the provinces with contemporary comedies—what one might call the best of the second-rate stuff that was sure of good houses. I couldn't help commenting on the envelope lying there under my nose. I prodded it with my finger and said: "I've seen these people, Captain. They're pretty good."

He looked at me abstractedly, turning the letter in his fingers. Then he said: "She doesn't know how difficult it is to get out here. She's arriving at Falmouth this afternoon but how on earth is she going to do the rest of the journey?"

"Are you having a visitor?"

"Yes, my daughter—Mary Latter."

"She's your daughter? I've seen her act."

"I wish you hadn't, Mr. Essex," he said severely. "I don't approve of it."

He continued to stare at the letter. "Flesh and blood," he muttered. "That's the trouble, Mr. Essex—flesh and blood. Strange deep things, your own flesh and blood. There's no turning back on that. I settled that long ago."

"I'll bring her from Falmouth," I said. Instantly, he was all polite deprecation; but I bore him down. I was on holiday. To run the Maeve into Falmouth was as amusing a way of spending the afternoon as any other. And, anyway, I wanted to talk to Mary Latter alone. The captain wished to stay aboard the Jezebel, to make all ready. Despite his daughter's profession, he understood the duty of hospitality. But he was full of old-fashioned notions about unprotected females. His daughter might not care to entrust herself to my hands. How was he to know that I was not some desperado, capable of anything? So I climbed aboard the Jezebel, and he wrote a letter which he gave me to read. My good friend William Essex . . . trustworthy . . . honorable . . . may safely entrust.

★ ★ ★

ARMED with this introduction, I met Mary Latter at Falmouth Station that afternoon. A small trunk initialed "M. L." was all the identification I needed. I declared myself and handed her her father's letter. She read it and smiled. "The dear thing! Are you the novelist?"

"Yes."

"Then I'll shake hands again, just to say thank you. You've given me pleasure."

"And you me."

"Good. We're getting on well. How do I get to this hulk of father's?"

"You'll see. First, you'd better have some tea."

"I'd love it."

She was a friendly and intelligent woman, easy to talk to, with no demure pose of femininity. I judged she was rather older than myself. She had strong regular features which missed good looks. Her dark, purposeful face gave the impression of difficulties met and overcome. She was dressed in the spartan fashion of the time, with a straw "boater," a white high-necked blouse and a dark skirt.

We found a tearoom in the main street. It was a pleasant place, with a bay window from which we could overlook the harbor, full of steamers and little curtsying yachts and packets passing to and fro from Flushing and St. Mawes. She seemed tired. I poured her some tea.

"It's pleasant here," she said. "Father should be happy. Is he happy?"

"I think so. I see him a good deal, and he seems to enjoy life—in his own way—you know?"

She sighed. "Yes. I know."

"There's a whole pack of us down there. I suppose we're good for him. Especially the children. They keep him busy.'

"He always liked children," she said, and drummed on the table with her finger-tips, looking out over the color and animation of the water. "He still—writes—at night?"

I nodded. "He told me all about that. He showed me his papers."

"We had a little house at Deptford," she began irrelevantly, "a pretty place with a magnolia tree against the back wall—one of the biggest I've ever seen—"

Then she stopped, with almost a blush on her dark, somehow weatherbeaten-looking face. "I'm sorry," she said, again with that bright and kindly and courageous smile. "I was going to tell you the story of my life. So soon. Too soon."

"Let it keep till we're in the boat."

"I suppose it's the idea of seeing him again after so long. Five years."

Brilliant Play By Defender in Bridge Contest

By Ely Culbertson

EVERY so often it is my pride and pleasure to publish a real gem among bridge hands. The one described below might fittingly be called a ten-carat, blue-white diamond. The sparkle comes from the defense that was waged by the East player, Ivar Andersson of Sweden. Apparently the alarums and excursions of war have not reduced the caliber of bridge played in that unhappy part of the world.

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North: ♠10 8 5 ♥10 ♦A K Q J 10 6 ♣K 6 4
West: ♠7 4 3 ♥9 6 5 2 ♦9 7 5 ♣J 10 2
East: ♠K Q 9 6 ♥K Q 8 4 3 ♦None ♣A Q 9 8
South: ♠A J 2 ♥A J 7 ♦8 4 3 2 ♣7 5 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
3 dia'ds	Double	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Double	Redouble	Pass
Pass	Pass

West, with an almost worthless hand, made the sound and shrewd opening lead of the club jack. Dummy ducked and the club 10 was continued. The king was put up and East collected the ace and queen. At this point I think I can safely say that not more than 10 bridge players in the world, in East's position, would fail to cash the thirteenth club. And this is just another way of saying that not more than 10 players would defeat the contract if their opponent, the declarer, were an excellent card player, because the cashing of the thirteenth club would make the contract as cold as ice via a squeeze play. First, let us follow the course of Mr. Andersson's actual play, in which he refused to cash his good club and shifted to the heart king. Obviously, declarer had to take this trick or concede defeat, since then East would have been delighted to lay down his club trick. After winning with the heart ace, declarer could do no better than run the diamond suit. This was the position with one diamond left to play:

North: ♠10 8 5 ♥None ♦6 ♣None
West: ♠7 4 ♥9 6 ♦None ♣None
East: ♠K Q ♥Q ♦None ♣9
South: ♠A J ♥J 7 ♦None ♣None

Now, then North played the last diamond, East nonchalantly discarded his good nine of clubs! Declarer could not establish the ninth trick. On the first spade lead East's spade trick was established and, of course, declarer had to surrender the last two tricks to the spade king and the heart queen.

To see what would have happened if East had cashed his good club at the fourth trick, then had made the best return of a heart, take one card out of each hand in the four-card diagram above. This would leave North with the 10-8 of spades and a diamond, East with the K-Q of spades and the queen of hearts, South with the A-J of spades and the jack of hearts. Notice that when North's diamond is played, East is squeezed to a pulp. If he discards a spade, South throws off the heart and makes two spade tricks. If East lets go the heart queen, South abandons the spade jack and makes his fulfilling tricks with the spade ace and heart jack.

I call Mr. Andersson's defense rather neat!

Write your bridge troubles and problems to Ely Culbertson, care of St. Louis Post-Dispatch, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

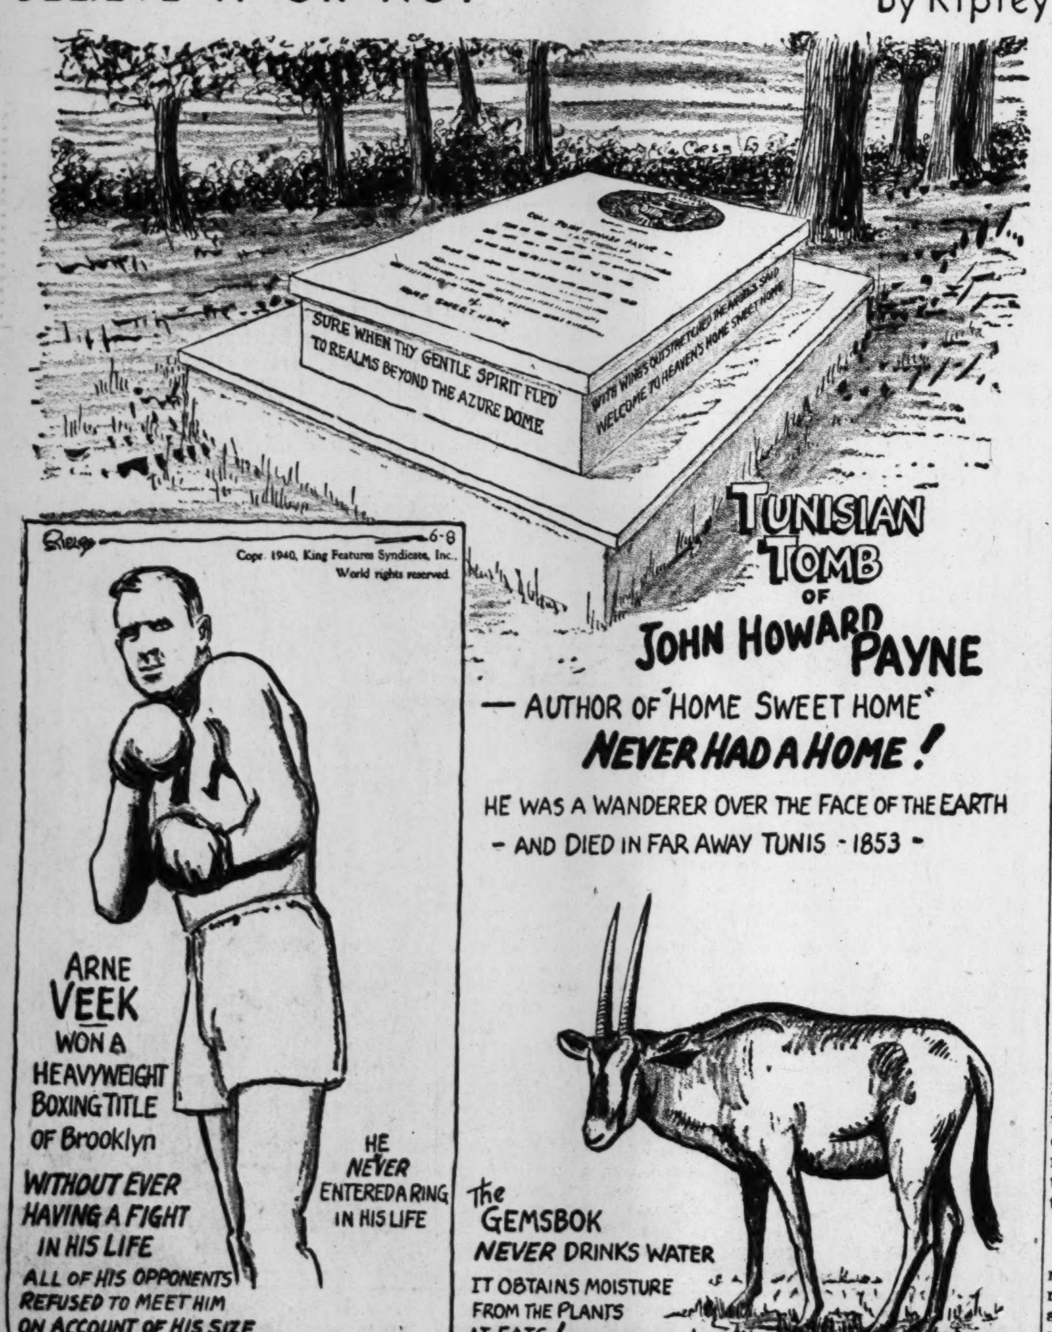
BELIEVE IT OR NOT By Ripley



ALL ITEMS SELF-EXPLANATORY

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE by WYNN

Sunday, June 9.

TODAY underlines mistakes, if any, of the recent past. Be willing to face facts and make wise adjustments—but give present decisions time to jell before acting. Week ahead is one of many problems, with much wisdom being called for.

What Might Have Been.

It is not possible to live a year without making decisions that will affect your entire future—perhaps I should have said, not a year, but a week. One cannot drift; even deciding not to decide is a decision. Everything that followed would have been different if one had done otherwise. Every step we took would have been in at least three other directions: left, right or backward.

Your Year Ahead

Your year ahead, if born on this date, must be one of quiet, persistent, preparation for coming expansion. Lay plans, push quietly, get foundations ready. Danger: Sept. 13-24; Jan. 22-Feb. 4; June 8-17, 1941.

Monday, June 10.

Here's a day for straight thinking—but it is not indicated as being easy to do. Regard well all relations with those higher up, socially and occupationally. But don't make quick changes; avoid self-pity germ; hold the sudden inspiration.

Definition, Please.

Have you read Stuart Chase's "The Tyranny of Words?" If so, you are a great deal more careful of the terms and phrases you use than are most people. Take, for instance, the word "philosophy." What does it mean? It means one thing to you—something else to another. So let's find out what we mean, if we can, to avoid wasting time at cross purposes. Do you think philosophy is good or bad?

Your Year Ahead

Your year ahead between this and next birthdays can bring profit and more happiness if you seek home, and other quiet means of self improvement. Many inner changes due. Danger: Sept. 14-26; Jan. 23-Feb. 6; and June 10-18, 1941.

Airing the Books

One day of each month leave the doors of your bookcase open and allow some air to reach the leather bindings. It will keep them in better condition.

My Neighbor Says:

Select suitable bowls and vases in which to arrange flowers to decorate the house. Do not crowd flowers into them, but carefully select different flowers for different containers. A single rose in a bud vase is far more effective than several roses crowded into a bowl.

An excellent polish for mahogany is a tablespoon of olive oil mixed with a teaspoon of vinegar. Apply the fluid with a soft flannel, after the wood has been dusted. Then polish thoroughly with a soft, clean duster.

When frying don't put in the article to be fried until the fat is still and a faint smoke is seen rising from the pan.

The pockets of kitchen aprons are constantly catching on door handles, nails, etc. Try putting the pockets in the center of the apron. The pockets can be reached by either hand and cannot catch on anything and tear.

Don't Take My Word for It

By Frank Colby

INSIGNIA, a noun: Marks, badges, or emblems.

Are these statements correct: "The badge is the policeman's insignia of authority; the sergeant's chevrons are the insignias of his rank?"

Both statements are incorrect. Apparently few persons understand that insignia is a plural noun, and that it is properly used for two or more emblems or badges.

"Ah, yes," say Latin students, "then 'insignium' is the correct singular form, isn't it?" Not so. The correct singular is the suprise word of the week: INSIGNE.

How to use the words: "One badge is an insigne; two badges are the insignia (not insignias)." Correct pronounciations: insigne: in-SIG-nee; insignia; in-SIG-nee-uh. (Capitals indicate syllables to be accented.)

Question: What is the origin of the word "caddie"? Golfer.

Answer: "Caddie" is a Scotch variation of the French "cadet" (pronounced "kah-DAY"). The original Scotch meaning was "one who solicits odd jobs or work as an errand boy." The word "cad" also derives from cadet.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr:

A CERTAIN boy and girl are much in love with each other. The boy has no steady job, his finances are low and his future looks dim. He is often sarcastic and irritable, mainly because he has been instilled with the idea that he has no right to take up this girl's time when she could have dates with fellows with better prospects. Yet she has passed up many opportunities to go places this boy could not afford, rather than not be in his company. She is a girl who could make any fellow happy—intelligent, considerate, pleasant personality and all the rest. This boy felt that by being sarcastic and irritable he could make the girl disgusted with him, but so far it hasn't made a dent. He hates to lose her but feels it would be for her own good. What would you suggest?

BOY IN LOVE.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

You do not give your age, so I am unable to tell you whether you are one of the teen agers who has become serious and tragic beyond his years, or an older boy of marriageable age who despairs of being able to find steady work and support the girl of his heart in the manner to which she has become accustomed. If you belong in the first category, simply see less of the girl, stop going steady and give her a real chance to meet others and fall out of love with you and all will be well. If you are older and the two of you much in love, it does not seem to me quite fair then, either, to tie her down when you have no prospects. See her only occasionally and in the meanwhile make every effort to find steady employment. If you need more education for this, go to night school and improve yourself in every possible way. When you have obtained steady work with a living wage for two will be the time to ask her to marry you. If for any reason you are unable to do this and truly feel the girl would do better to forget you, simply date her less and less and finally not at all. The human heart has great resiliency, and while she would suffer for a time she would not die of a broken heart, nor live single forever and bewail your absence. That has been out of date for quite some time.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE A GIRL friend I care for a lot, but she has a habit which bothers me greatly. She is always yawning. When I call for her she asks me to come in, and yawns. When we go driving in the car, she yawns; she claims the fresh air makes her do this. I take her home and she thanks me for the good time and yawns as she thanks me. She doesn't work hard and gets plenty of sleep, and I don't understand this yawning. It is catching, I am getting so I yawn myself. My conversation isn't dull and I try to take her to interesting places to please her. We date twice per week. Is she hinting that I bore her, or what is her trouble?

WORRIED.

It may be that on nights when she is not with you she is dancing, far into the night, and missing that necessary beauty sleep; it may be she is bored and being very rude and showing it; it may be she is possessed of some strange malady; it may be she is simply taking in the good fresh air, as she suggests. Whatever her trouble I would find myself another girl, and the first time she yawns I would flee and get me another. No habit could be more rude, and if you are spending time and entertainment and hard-earned money on a girl, the least she can do is register interest and not eternal boredom, or stay at home and get her needed rest. It is probably only a bad habit, but I would give her absent treatment for a time, at least. When she discovers herself shunned she may wake up and stop the yawning.

IN ANSWER to "W. T.": Since your husband's conduct is affecting your health and you have spoken to him to no avail I believe your family doctor could make him realize that he must not do things which upset you so and behave in such an uncouth manner. If he must have a night out with the boys, well and good, but for him to stay out till all hours and again on Sundays returning regularly in the wee small hours in a deplorable condition, is more than you can be expected to put up with, and an exceedingly bad example to the children, as well. Since he seems to be a good husband in other ways I believe a talk with your doctor will straighten him out. At least it would be worth trying.

Teach Yourself to Swim

-o- -o-

By Ethelda Bleibtrey

This is the thirteenth of 14 articles on swimming by Miss Bleibtrey, former Olympic and World Freestyle and Backstroke champion.

THE average person floats close enough to the surface of the water to be able to clear the water line easily just by turning the head. However, the pressure of the opposite underwater drive lifts the shoulders and head slightly at the time of inhaling, which insures your mouth clearing for the intake. It is not necessary to climb up to get the breath, nor should you raise the head up to get the breath.

If you do not float easily, it is better to roll the body more to the side to inhale, than to get the breath by pulling the head up. At this point of learning, anything that disturbs the flat position of the body becomes a hindrance to progress. You have learned that raising the head forces the feet to lower, changing the body from a flat position to a semi-vertical position. After two strokes of this, the up and down motion of the body in the water would be so emphasized that it would be nearly impossible to get additional breaths.

Keep the body flat, the head turning freely and the stroke rhythmical. One of the main points to remember when first learning to breathe is to keep moving. A common tendency is to stop swimming when you turn to breathe. When you once start the arms in motion, keep them going regardless of how much air you get the first few times. After you acquire the habit of swimming on, regardless, the turning of the head and remembering to breathe will not seem so hard.

Another fault in beginners lies in not turning the head independent of the shoulders. Remember you must first turn your head as far as possible to the side, then, only if necessary to get the mouth clear of the water, turn the shoulders as little as possible.

Keep the leg beat going constantly, for the greater the driving force you get from the legs the less speed you must use with the arms, thus giving you more time in which to perfect breathing. It is important to get in as much air as possible every time you can because there are some strokes in which the balance of the body is not just right for a good breath. If you breathe deeply when you can, you won't be inconvenienced much when that happens.

The reason we inhale through the mouth instead of the nose is to get a big breath in a short time. Also so as not to sniffle the particles of water in the nose back into the sinus regions. We exhale through the nose at first for the same reason. Forcing the air out through the nose at the beginning of each exhalation keeps the nose reasonably clear of water and prevents irritation and coughing.

It is when the drops of water in the nose are allowed to fall back into the throat, or forced into the sinus by sniffing, the beginner experiences some very uncomfortable moments of choking or feeling an acute nose burn. That is why, throughout the course you have been advised to blow out hard through the nose whenever your face has been submerged under water. Get into the habit of doing this constantly.

Some may ask, "how can I open my mouth under water to exhale without getting a mouth full and choking on it?" Let us study this question carefully! There are many expert swimmers today who do not know the answer to how they avoid that very thing.

Drowning is caused by asphyxiation. Figuratively, you can drown by getting a spoonful of tea down your wind-pipe, unless you coughed it out. With the wind-pipe closed, the lungs become full of carbon monoxide instead of oxygen. This would soon render you unconscious and if prolonged, would kill you. The problem in swimming then is to consciously keep the wind-pipe from getting clogged.

When you are blowing the air out under water, there is no danger of getting water in the wind-pipe, as long as you don't forget and start to inhale while you are underneath. If you have exhaled most of the air in one count while swimming, and have two counts to go before you may have another breath, you must hold your breath until you are ready to inhale again. That is why I stress distribution of air in breathing. This is especially important for beginners. The breathing counts are changed slightly as the swimmer becomes more expert.

Monday—Some final advice.

A Physician's Comment On Smoking Habit

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

THERE is no question that tobacco is a drug. And there is no question that as a habit its use is very common.

Those being undeniable facts, they arouse in different persons, different reactions. Once when I wrote of some experiments made on the effect of tobacco on athletes' "wind," I received a letter from a Midwest college instructor saying he would no longer allow my writings to be read in his classrooms, as they heretofore had been, and that he was convinced from a study of his students, that the use of cigarettes caused low grades of scholarship.

I feel that, intellectually, such a man shows that he does not know the nature of evidence. But he reveals one attitude of mind towards tobacco—the relentless reformer.

It's pretty hard to figure out, as G. K. Chesterton, the great English essayist, said, where there is any "moral issue" involved in smoking or not smoking at all. There is, in the use of alcohol and, of course, the narcotics. But not tobacco. And I think we ought to get that straightened out to begin with.

Then there is a large group of people who smoke and who are continuously worrying about whether it really does them any harm or not.

★ ★ ★

AND THERE is a group which smokes and is convinced it does harm (without any very good evidence). But these enjoy it enough so they go on smoking anyway.

Then there is the vast majority who smoke and don't think very much about it one way or the other.

Curiously, in view of its present bad repute, tobacco was at first used for its great healing powers. Jean Nicot, whose name has been eponymized in "nicotine," sent seeds of the tobacco to Catherine de Medici that they might be cultivated for their medicinal properties. "Herba panacea" it was called and William Lilly refers to "our holy herb nicotain."

The opponents of tobacco have always used as their impregnable rock of debate, the fact that nicotine is a poison. There is no question about it. There is enough nicotine in an ordinary cigar to kill two stout adult men. Probably more, since from 60 to 120 milligrams will kill a man, depending on age and condition. Every fraternity house and, I presume, every sorority house in the United States, knows that a very small amount of the goo in the stem of a pipe, placed on its tongue will kill a cat in about four minutes. Eight drops given to a horse will kill it in eight minutes.

BERLIN, June 8 (AP German military sources declared tonight the Nazi steamroller is breaking the Maginand line at will and pushing down the path to Paris just as planned.

Three confident sentences made up the high command communique which for the fourth day of the battle of France drive reported steady advances without disclosing any details.

But those at home were advised not to fear that this meant a bogdown of the drive, by veteran troops and fresh reserve divisions. Instead, military sources said, the march toward the heart of France continues a day ahead of the pace first set by the high command.

Gains were claimed for the big thrusts, steel shod columns supported by plunging stukas.

Hitler Paper Outlines Drive

Hitler's own newspaper, Volkischer Beobachter, listed the drive and their objectives as:

Southwest from Abbeville on the Bresle River toward Le Havre, extending Germany's line on the northwestern coast of Europe from the Arctic Circle to Norway to south of the mouth of the Somme.

South from Amiens; south from Perrone and south from the Aisne Canal—to merge into a smashing punch at Paris.

"Operations south of the Somme and the Oise-Aisne Canal are progressing successfully," the German communique said, "and the enemy is being thrown back south of the lower Somme."

Those successes, the German said, proved the new French "line of defense" had spongy, weak spots and is "unstable."

France's experience with the German blitzkrieg machine, it added, sent to the military graveyard "France's hopes" for position warfare.

German Blockade Threat

A German radio review of the week's fighting commented that Britain "will soon get to feel the results of German control of the coast.

"The blockade Britain wishes Germany turns the other way," a German announcer said. Britain's eastern ports, especially the important Thames estuary, and some of the southern ports will soon be blocked for all traffic."

It was indicated this would be accomplished by submarines, fast skimming torpedo launches and bombers based close to the British Channel.

Germans at home divided their attention between reports from the French front and reports of the preparations for war.

Officials only smile in reply to questions as to when Premier Mussolini may place the Axis nations side by side in battle.

Neutral observers watched closely for Soviet Russia's attitude toward the reshaping of Europe on new principles. There was no official statement of the Soviet position in regard to German-Italian plans.

Different From Flanders

Meanwhile, the Berlin newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung described operations in North France as "varying greatly" from the Flanders campaign in Flanders, the paper said:

"For the present the success of German fighting cannot stand
